EX-DUCE PRISONER, REPORT: MARTIAL LAW RULES ITALY

ALLIES PINCH AXIS TIGHTER INTO CORNER

Americans Take Another Town and 7,000 More Prisoners In Sicilian Advance.

SIX GENERALS SEIZED

Canadians and British Forces Slowed Up By Bitter Nazi Resistance.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Allied troops are squeezing tighter upon Axis last-stand defenses in northeastern Sicily against bitter resistance, it was announced today, and American troops mopping up western Sicily have captured Termini, 20 miles east of Palermo, and taken 7,000 more prisoners, including six Italian generals and an admiral

"Further pressure on the enemy was maintained in all sectors" by American, Canadian and British forces closing in on the Catania-Etna-Messina area, the Allied communique declared.

Canadians striking east from central Sicily "continued to advance, but their progress was slowed in the face of bitter resistance," it added. Some units of the U S. Seventh army driving toward Messina are far to the east of Termini, and its capture consolidates the grasp upon the northern coastal area of the island.

More than 70,000 prisoners now are in Allied hands of whom 56,000 were taken by Americans

To date, 10 generals and two admirals have surrendered.

It was officially estimated that three and a half German divisions and three Italian divisions were bottled up in the northeastern corner of Sicily.

Allied planes kept up their incessant hammering, and the Axis supply port of Milazzo west of Messina was blasted Saturday night with many fires started. Road objectives near Orlando also were hit

Three Axis aircraft were destroyed against loss of one Allied plane.

American units had all but finished the mop-up of western Sicily with occupation of Trapani and had taken at least 57,000 prisoners. Trapani was occupied over the week-end by armored forces

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL

BENITO MUSSOLINI

MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO

The interest of the world centered in the three men pictured here — Benito Mussolini, whose Fascist regime crashed yesterday as he gave up his title of "Il Duce" and all of his other powers in Italy; King Victor Emmanuel, who "accepted" Mussolini's resignation yesterday afternoon and named Marshal Pietro Badoglio to the post of premier. Badoglio, bitter enemy of Mussolini, but regarded as the ablest of Italian military men, was expected to seek peace with the Allies, although he said yesterday in assuming his new duties "the war continues." Meanwhile there was wide speculation as to the whereabouts of Mussolini.

AWARDED STAR

Lieut. Chatlain Gets Honor For Outstanding Bravery.

Enroute today to a government hospital in Battle Creek, Mich., where he expects to be fitted with an artificial limb to take the place of one he lost in the Tunisian campaign, Lieut. Dean F. Chatlain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Chatlain, 335 Cedar street, was notified that he has been awarded the Silver Star.

A letter from the war department said the citation had been made for "outstanding bravery above and beyond the call of duty." Lieut. Chatlain, a tank platoon commander, lost his leg Feb. . when his tank was hit by a German incendiary shell while he was directing an attack of a Nazi fortified position.

Formal presentation of the award is expected to be made at Battle Creek where Chatlain expects to be confined for at least four weeks.

U. S. INDICTS 8 AS TREASONISTS

All Had Broadcast Nazi and Fascist Propaganda From Germany and Italy.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Eight Americans, including two women, who have broadcast regularly from Germany and Italy in behalf of the Axis war effort, were indicted today for treason, and Attorney General Biddle said they would be brought to trial when caught.

The indictments, involving a charge which carries the death penalty, were returned before Federal District Judge James W. Morris in the District of Columbia as the culmination of many months of preparation by the justice department.

The indictments are similar, each alleging that the defen-

State Calls Off Air Raid Test Set For Current Week

The surprise air raid alert announced for this week in the Mansfield area has been postponed until next week, Ralph Stone, state civilian defense director, told Mansfield OCD officials today.

Stone said the state civilian defense organization needed more time to effect changes in the communication system over which the air raid alarms are transmitted to district headquarters. Defects in the system showed up in a surprise daylight alert early this month and a number of cities had to devise their own mobilization schedule.

The surprise test next week will test the efficiency of the communication system and give civilian defense units more mobilization practice. Motor and pedestrian traffic will be halted during the test, but passengers in buses and private automobiles will not be required to leave the vehicles after they have been stopped.

Little Jimmy, 2, Didn't Know He Couldn't Wake 'Mummy'

Jimmy Lee Kelly woke up this morning bright-eyed and rosy-cheeked just like all two-year-old youngsters do after a refreshing night's sleep.

Jimmy's dad is in the army—way off in California, and if Jimmy could tell this story he would tell you that "Mummy" is both dad and mother to him right now.

They were great pals. They slept in the same bed. "Mummy" would cuddle him close to her at night and in the morning Jimmy's cooing and gurgling awakened her.

Jimmy awakened as usual this morning but something was wrong He lay still awhile and then he began playfully pawing at his mother's face and calling for "Mummy" to wake up — but "Mummy" lay still.

That's about all Jimmy knows about the story. What he didn't know was that "Mummy" was dead and that death had come about four hours before while he was sleeping. Officials determined that "Mummy" died while she was sleeping too. A heart attack was to blame.

Jimmy's mother was 21-year-old Mrs. Imogene Kelly, wife of Pfc. Leland J. Kelly stationed at Camp Ord, Calif., and they lived in a second floor apartment at 155 Blymyer avenue.

She was apparently in good health last night. She took a ride with her father, Herbert Zimmerman, 78 East Third street and returned home at 10.

Discovery of her death with Jimmy playfully trying to awaken her was made by Mrs. Peter Hart who lives downstairs.

Here's what happened:

Mrs Kelly was a defense work-

CITY SPEEDING PLANS TO BUY AIRPORT TRACT

Council Schedules Caucus For Thursday To Decide on Financing Program.

PLANS ACTION NEXT WEEK

Confer on Funds Available To Purchase 19 Land Parcels Needed For Project.

Preparing the way for the speedy purchase of 1,000 acres north of the city for the Mansfield airport expansion project, city council is expected to meet in caucus Thursday night to decide on a financing plan and map legislation for council action next week

Russell Porch chairman of council's finance committee, said he would call a meeting of the committee for Thursday and invite other councilmen and City Auditor Paul L. Kelley to sit in on the session

Porch said the finance committee will obtain figures from the auditor about the city's financial condition and attempt to map a plan for financing the purchase of the land.

"We will want to know exactly how much we can spend from the general fund and to what extent the city can issue bonds to cover the rest of the cost" Porch said

City Solicitor Leslie K Wagner said the property the city needs is owned by 19 persons and probably will cost about $100,000.

The council finance committee meeting was urged by Mayor W. J Locke who said property owners in the vicinity of the airport want to know how much of their land is in the airport area so they can plan their fall farm operations

Council is scheduled to meet in regular session a week from tomorrow night and hopes to have the airport legislation ready for action then.

The city auditor has estimated that approximately $60,000 will be available from the city general fund for the airport land, and city officials have the assurance of the Chamber of Commerce legislative committee that bonds can be issued within the 10-mill tax limitation to take care of the remainder of the cost of the 1,000 acres of land which the Civil Aeronautics authority has designated as necessary for the expansion program.

C-47 LEAVES

Crowd Goes To Airport To See Big Troop Transport.

Hundreds of Mansfielders over the week-end got their first close-up view of one of the army air forces giant planes—a C-47 used for transporting troops and materials to the far-flung battle fronts.

The ship landed at Municipal airport late Saturday afternoon while on a routine flight. It took off shortly after noon yesterday for an undisclosed destination.

The pilot, a 19-year-old lieutenant, and 20 crew members and passengers, all members of the armed forces stayed at a downtown hotel Saturday night.

Largest plane ever to land at the port, attaches said, it got off easily using less than three-fourths of the east-west runway.

Mussolini's Surrender To Be Part of Any Peace Terms, Say Capital Sources.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill will address the next sitting of the house of commons about the resignation of Italian Premier Benito Mussolini, it was stated reliably today.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The White House today withheld comment on King Victor Emmanuel's assumption of power in Italy and the downfall of Benito Mussolini. Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said there was nothing to report on the events in Italy.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Highly authoritative sources in Washington today asserted that the United States government is determined to punish Benito Mussolini as a war criminal despite his resignation as Fascist dictator of Italy.

These sources said the American government regards Mussolini as one of the leading war criminals of the second world war. Officials said Mussolini must be held accountable to a military jury for his despicable "stab-in-the-back" thrust at France after that nation had been beaten to its knees by Hitler's Germany.

They also wish to place him on trial for what are called his "crimes against the Italian people" — his invasion of Ethiopia, his seizure of Albania and his war against Greece.

There were strong indications in official quarters that one of the major conditions of the United Nations' "unconditional surrender" terms to Italy, will be surrender of

Roy B. Dickson, 64, Restaurant Owner, Taken By Death

Roy B. Dickson, 64, proprietor of the Evergreens cafeteria and the Dickson market and a Mansfield business and civic leader, died unexpectedly shortly before noon today after he was stricken while en route to his farm near Bellville. Death was believed due to a heart attack.

Mr. Dickson was driving to his fruit and livestock farm in the southern part of the county when he became ill. He asked a farmer to drive him back to Mansfield, but he died before they reached General hospital.

Members of the family said he had been troubled recently with a heart ailment and they believed he felt an attack coming on when he stopped his car and asked for help near Bellville. He slumped in the seat before reaching Mansfield and died a few minutes later.

The body was removed from the hospital to the Finefrock funeral

Mussolini Reported To Have Been Seized Trying To Flee; Badoglio Commands Army As Fascism Collapses With 'Resignation' Of Founder.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today said that he does not anticipate any change in America's policy of insisting upon the unconditional surrender of Italy as a result of King Victor Emmanuel's assumption of power and the downfall of Mussolini.

BULLETIN

ALGIERS—(AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio was reported today to have ordered 22 Italian divisions home from Yugoslavia and Greece, and to have recalled three or four from France.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Martial law was proclaimed throughout harassed Italy today in swift succession to a government shake-up which eliminated Benito Mussolini and his Fascist cabinet and installed the conservative Marshal Pietro Badoglio as premier.

King Victor Emmanuel made the change in the war leadership, the first major break on the Axis front and a possible prelude to an Italian bid for peace.

Badoglio ordered the army to take over the preservation of public order throughout the nation, forbade gatherings of more than three persons, directed the people to remain at their work and empowered the troops to fire on any one who violated the instructions.

Hour by hour, developments in the situation which may hasten the end to the struggle into which Mussolini plunged Italy with the attack, as Germany's ally, upon France, June 10, 1940, were broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by listening posts throughout the world.

Dispatches from both Switzerland and Sweden said Mussolini had been arrested. These were without confirmation from Axis quarters.

A Reuters report from Stockholm said officers seized the dictator while he was trying to escape from Italy to Germany. A Bern dispatch said that he and his ministers were taken into custody.

Confronted by some of the gravest problems that the commander of a beaten and dispirited army ever faced, with the bulk of Sicily overrun by Allied armies, with German troops and German police on Italian soil, and with mainland cities beset by bombings which threaten ever increasing force, Badoglio said "the war continues."

In addition to his instructions to the people, the

Italian Surrender Would Provide 'Bloodless' 2nd Front

(Editor's Note. Associated Press War Correspondent Wes Gallagher, back in this country after covering the Tunisian war as a correspondent accredited to General Eisenhower's headquarters here surveys the possible long-range effects of Mussolini's resignation on the military situation and future Allied strategy.)

By WES GALLAGHER

NEW YORK— (AP)—Italy's surrender, apparently foreshadowed by Mussolini's downfall, would open a "bloodless" second front over night

It would alter the whole Mediterranean strategy of the Allies and shorten the war against Germany by months and perhaps years. Some of the fruits of victory would be:

1. Allied airfields in northern Italy from which American and RAF bombers could hammer every corner of Hitler's reich every hour of the day.

2. Certain collapse of Nazi resistance in the Balkans due to the withdrawal of the Italian garrisons, air pounding of already feeble Axis supply lines leading to Greece and similar peace moves by Hitler's war torn satellites, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria.

3. A bridgehead in Europe from which Allied troops might force their way into France and the Balkans.

Any Allied entry into Italy also would have its liabilities. These would be:

1. The necessity of finding shipping and food to feed Italy's 40,000,000—a tremendous strain on American and British sea traffic.

2. The necessity of garrisoning Italy with a half million troops.

Perhaps the biggest gain for America and Britain would be in the air. In trying to carry out an air war against Germany from England, the Allies have been forced to fly great distances over enemy territory and every foot of these distances has been bitterly contested by the Luftwaffe.

The Germans have had the advantage of knowing from which

CHAPTER IX

Since she had had to wait for r mother to dress and to make d receive several telephone ls as to where the best bridge me would be that evening and drive her there, it was after appointed seven-thirty when egan arrived at the large white b house which faced the bay. eady the parking lot was filled nost to capacity and music m the ballroom was floating lodiously from the opened win-ws upon the soft spring air. It s scarcely twilight so that a l boat was still on the bay, its nge sails mingling with the rm colors which had begun to eak the sky.

For a few minutes she sat in car, her hands tightly clasped on the full-skirted, rose-colored ner frock. More than anything wished to be alone rather n to have more confusion and otion, more 'see-sawin' added the crowded day. She felt she ld not bear having her heart ed one moment and then shed down the next, the certain ults of an evening with Toby d Clare and Fayne. More, she s frightened, feeling once more stirring of something evil in air, hatred and passions un-shed, the gates of decorum un-ked. But it was the thought of re that did that to her while be with Fayne made her think t they were, simply and natur-y, meeting as in their hearts y had known they would and t they were very happy to be ether again. Nor were her rs for Toby alone. She was htened for herself and for her n hates and passions. For the le while she had been with yne that afternoon she was not sensible young person she had be. It was as though when she s with him she ceased to be thing other than a girl rap-ously in love . . . But she was in love with him. She did know him and she had not right to know him. It was a e of arrested development, like ling in love with a movie star has never seen . . . It was ldish and absurd. It was alarm-and unforgivable.

She was trembling when she out of the car and walked to club where old Mose, who had wn her all her life, bowed opened the door for her, his ck face breaking into fine ats when he smiled.

Sho glad to see you, Miss egan. So glad to see you. Mis-Toby he's already gone in . . . ne Mistah Toby, always in' . . ."

How are you, Mose?"

Jes fine. But ah'm sho no d when it's cold."

Mose, at least, was one person o did not change, she thought, she entered the center hall and lked to the rear and left her rt white wrap. When, a mo-nt later, she entered the din-room, she felt that she was ing a test. The thought flashed ough her mind then that now re than ever, now in time of r, people should think of them-ves less as individual and more a mass with but one great tral thought; to erase with d strokes the rash that had its beginning in Berlin and ich was spreading to all parts the world.

But her attention was divided en she saw Mrs. Lester and ca and a man who was ob-usly Mr. Lester, a thin young n with thinning dark hair who ked distinctly uncomfortable. s. Lester, on the other hand, aring a black frock, very decol-, with a living orchid atop her blond curls, looked muscular h her arms bare and seemed y pleased to be where she was. Erica, her plain red crepe din-frock with short sleeves very oming, seemed to have strayed o the wrong company and was ing impolitely disconsolate ut it. She looked, Meegan ught, as though she wished she w a trick of magic to make disappear.

Only Mrs. Lester seemed to be oying herself, her eyes taking ef, restless excursions to sur-nding faces, her bright mouth dy to smile at anyone who uld smile at her, her orchid lding a greeting with her. You ld see her, Meegan thought, ing great pains with her dress-and sitting for an hour before mirror so that every curl was place and then with her plump d pinning the orchid in her r carefully so that the pin uld be invisible and it would m that the orchid grew there. could see her inspecting Mr. ter to see that his clothes e right, probably wishing that looked more distinguished and s a man who had not enough sleep. She would approve of eye-catching redness of Ericka's frock but not of the severity of its lines. She had undoubtedly left her room untidy with tops off jars and bottles and with powder spilled on her dressing table. But she had gone in to see her children and kissed them fondly. And then she had left the house with great hope and good will in her capacious heart.

Both Mrs. Lester and her orchid nodded to Meegan but Mr. Lester and Erica stared, the former with the blankness of expression with which one regards a total stranger, the latter with the frigidity which only the tactless reserve for those they most candidly dislike. Why had Erica singled her out for her hate, Meegan wondered, smiling the only friendly greeting Mrs. Lester had had that evening! She thought, I like Mrs. Lester. She makes me think of very clean things . . . the smell of clean clothes drying in the sun and a good dinner cooking on the stove . . .

But the next moment she was on guard only Fayne sat at the round, white-clothed table and he was rising to meet her, his slow smile making her feel that her dress was not three years old but a new and very lovely one bought for this occasion, the occasion of their meeting again. But her high feeling was suddenly gone when she wondered where Clare and Toby were and if Toby were drinking too much and why it was that Fayne showed no jealousy or concern.

"Hello," he said. "Clare and Toby and the others are down in the bar. This is quite a homecoming for Clare. I've ordered a drink for us here. Toby said you liked a mint drink . . ."

"I do. Thank you." It was obvious that he did not want to go downstairs to the bar, a long, narrow, pine panelled room that had been 'done' in her time. She sat down, picked up the glass and said, "I'm sorry I'm late."

He smiled. "I hope you won't be sorry you danced with me. Will you?"

It was at least half an hour before Toby and Clare, Betsy and Harry Wick and two couples unknown to Meegan, came upstairs. Meanwhile she had talked and danced with Fayne, feeling more than ever the positiveness of his personality behind his slow smile. He had little small talk, he did not pretend to amuse her or entertain her, and his questions of present day, highly accelerated, industrial Baltimore were straight to the point. She was very glad that she read the papers carefully. But she could not understand how he could be both personal and impersonal at the same time and it occurred to her that he would make a first rate diplomat. Nor did he seem in the slightest perturbed by Clare's absence. In fact when she came leading the others, wearing a clinging bright blue jersey dinner frock, her diamonds a-glitter, the finely drawn features of Fayne's face exhibited even a mild surprise.

"I hope Fayne has been amusing you, darling," she said to Meegan as Toby stood at attention beside her chair.

And once more Meegan was conscious of Clare's nervousness, her startling beauty with the destroying undercover . . . and of the fact that it was perfectly obvious to Clare that her dress was three years old with a mend in it.

They took their places and ordered dinner. Afterward Toby asked her to dance and at the sight of Erica sitting stiffly alone she said, "Toby, see the girl in red over my shoulder now. I want you to ask her to dance."

Toby, somewhat unsteady, seemed to lean upon her. "Where? Red, did you say? Oh! Not bad. Not bad at all!"

"She's Erica Lester."

"Not the one Sue was telling us about?"

"Yes, I imagine she is the one Sue was telling you about."

"What am I supposed to do? Take her under my wing?" He grinned at Meegan. "Ah, you trust me. I'm impressed. Okay, I'll give the little gal a whirl."

Army K-9's Find Meals Served at Camps Are O. K.

DENVER—(U.P.)—The troubles of civilian dogs are multiplying daily, with meat rationing and legislation to forbid their rooting in victory gardens, but dogs at Camp George West, an army "postgraduate" school, lead the life of Riley.

Army dogs sent to the advanced dog training school near Denver get three good meals a day, and in between times go through training that's more fun than chasing the neighbor's cat back home.

Camp George West receives dogs that have completed three to six months' training at "primary" schools in the region, and when they leave here they are highly qualified sentries, guards, or dispatch carriers.

The three meals the army dogs receive every day consist mostly of horse meat, cereal, potatoes and milk. The dogs' day starts at 6 a. m. and after 5:15 p. m. the animals' time is their own until next morning. Each dog has his own private kennel.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

NORTH AFRICAN AIR FIELD—(By Wireless)—Our planes are waiting here an hour for a fighter escort to take several of us across the Mediterranean to Sicily. This may be my last chance to send back copy for several days.

But just to keep the editors happy I am doing this pot boiler sitting in the shade of one wing of our plane with my typewriter on a five-gallon galvanized can, and Clapper's rear on a two-gallon can which is beginning to sag in the middle. You look out for yourself out in the field here, as all readers of Ernie Pyle know. He is widely known all over North Africa as the best camper among the correspondents. A tenderfoot like myself takes what the army issues and becomes loaded down like one of John Steinbeck's Oakies in the Grapes of Wrath.

Clapper

We carry our own rations, for instance, as there is no certainty of finding mess in Sicily. I am carrying a carton containing three cans of salmon, four cans of meat and vegetables, two cans of ration sausages which are like weak hot dogs, five cartons of hard tack and several packages of rations which are allegedly complete meals in a small box three by six by two inches. The whole meal occupies about the space of an ordinary three-decker sandwich at your drug store fountain.

Each of us is eating and working under the plane wing. I find I have a breakfast box by mistake. The package reads U. S. army field ration breakfast unit. Here is what the best fed army in the world is given in a breakfast field ration kit: one 2-ounce fruit bar which I will now open and eat. Pause. It seems to be ground, dried prunes of which one bite is more than sufficient. Next I find a small round can of veal and pork loaf—ingredients: cooked veal and pork, milk, cracker meal, salt, onions, eggs, and sugar and spice and everything nice—and sodium nitrate.

This I spread on seven biscuits, nabisco size. Pause. It eats right well but I prefer the dinner ration course which is American rat cheese—I had that for lunch in the Flying Fortress coming back from Rome. Over under the other wing I see Artist George Biddle of the army art unit cleaning his mess kit with a handful of grass. He is not working and hence is able to finish eating first. He is a brother of the attorney general and is the third Biddle I have encountered this trip.

I have some powdered coffee which I dissolve in the mess cup with cold water from my canteen. We get three lumps of sugar—thanks—all of which I use over here. Cool coffee for lunch is not bad, sitting here in the shade with a cool breeze blowing as if I were on the Washington hotel roof.

I now find the ration includes three Chelsea cigarets, which I will give away, one stick of Spearmint gum which I will chew. Just as I feared—the oil can has collapsed under the added weight of lunch and I will finish this quickly, sitting on the ground.

If you want me to tell you more I am carrying a typewriter, dispatch case for copy paper, maps, notebooks, a bag containing my mess kit, flashlight, towel, pajamas, toilet kit, toilet paper, which is most important, an extra fountain pen, ink, canteen, sun glasses, barracks bag containing rations, helmet, extra shirt, trousers, socks. You don't wear much underwear and that a long time here.

I also carry a bedding roll containing a cot, three blankets, and mosquito netting. On the hoof I weigh about 300 pounds. I wear an army shirt, trousers, field cap, leggings and good ole GI shoes which are the most comfortable footwear ever made. That's one job the army has done to perfection—they've got a shoe that you can wear in peace.

Well, we must be going now and thanks to Uncle Sam for a nourishing lunch.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—I have had several requests to dig out the clips on the old case of Dr. William A. Wirt, the Gary, Indiana, superintendent of schools and give an opinion whether the startling story which he told in 1934 has been confirmed by the fuller development of the New Deal.

It has been a tedious job and I have to report that he was mistaken in that President Roosevelt, the Kerensky of his fears, has not given way to the Stalin of the plot. But, reviewing officious and unfair treatment which this man received from a committee of the house of representatives and from the press generally I would marvel at the effrontery of New Deal statesmen and New Deal publicists today in resenting the unconventional methods of the Dies committee, if, as a political element in Washington, they had not shown long ago that fairness is not in them.

Pegler

Wirt was stoned in the market place, ridiculed, heckled, sneered at and denied all those rights and privileges which Mrs. Roosevelt in particular and many other New Dealers have bespoken since then for Communists and pro-Communists who were under investigation by Martin Dies.

It all began when James H. Rand, jr., in the course of routine testimony before the interstate commerce committee of the house, read a statement which Dr. Wirt had sent to him and others, charging that the brain trust was determined to destroy the America of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln and shove the common man back into the dark ages.

The statement said that Wirt had asked some individuals of this group what their concrete plan was for overthrowing the established social order and that they said their intention was to thwart 'our then evident recovery,' prolong the country's destitution and make it necessary for the government to operate industry and commerce. That this control has been achieved to a large extent now may be regarded as only partial vindication of Dr. Wirt because the war greatly accelerated this development and nobody could plainly foresee the war then. Dr. Wirt's statement also said that one of his New Deal prophets had said: "We believe we have Mr. Roosevelt in the middle of a swift stream and that the current is so strong that he cannot turn back or escape from it. We believe we can keep Mr. Roosevelt there until we are ready to supplant him with a Stalin."

Well, at that, the New Dealers, who then had an extraordinarily brutal and recklessly unethical clique in the press galleries of Washington went to work on Dr. Wirt like a mob of pickets on a horny-handed son of toil. He was threatened with prosecution for perjury, a euphemism for lese majesty, if he failed to prove up. And one New Deal member of the house committee of five, named to "investigate" him uttered, and then withdrew, with apologies, a false charge that he had been arrested for pro-German activity during the last war.

When he showed up for his hearing he was not allowed to have counsel. And, although it developed that one of the New Deal "satellites" who had been present at the dinner party where Wirt said he had heard this program discussed, was the Washington correspondent for the Soviet's news agency, known as Tass, the hearing was so conducted as to indicate Wirt had monopolized the conversation entirely. His discourse was a monologue, according to the testimony of his hostess and his fellow guests and none of them had been able to get in a word. This version the New Deal majority of the committee accepted in a division on strict party lines as though it would have been humanly possible for one individual to hold the floor in any company of New Dealers, including a correspondent of the Communist press, for one word in succession to say nothing of one minute or three hours.

In the end, the New Dealers cast three votes against the two Republicans to forget the whole matter. Wirt, meanwhile, had been torn apart and beaten over the head with the bloody ends of his own arms and legs.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who was then enjoying the idolatry of her own circle of lady journalists, some of whom used to sit at her feet during her press conferences, had joined in the raillery by reciting a parody on "Little Orphan Annie" in which a black Russian bear carried off President Roosevelt.

Dr. Wirt died in 1940 and on his death John O'Connor, of New York, an ex-congressman of the original New Deal, who had been beaten in the historic purge, issued a statement entitled confession is good for the soul. In this he declared that as a member of the New Deal majority of the Wirt committee he had joined with the other two New Dealers to give Wirt the works and prevent the two Republicans from conducting a fair investigation of the charges.

The press, including even that portion which usually strives to be objective and fair, covered itself with disgrace. Wirt never had a Chinaman's chance.

And neither Mrs. Roosevelt nor anyone else of those who later protested against the unfeeling treatment of a group of precocious campus Communists and fellow-travelers by the Dies committee raised a voice in the interests of the truth or in defense of the ordinary rights of Dr. Wirt.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: New York's well known night club is run by Sherman Billingsley of Enid, Okla. He used to concentrate his hosting on movie stars, columnists, and Broadway millionaires, but these days he seems more attentive to fellows named Jones who wear khaki.)

Sherman Billingsley Says—

THE WAR has brought a few changes to the night club business. Some of them are problems arising from the rationing program and the shortages of food and liquors. But the most interesting change I've noticed is in the customers themselves. Their attitude is more of sincere friendship and geniality that it used to be ever before. Even the celebrities who always resented being annoyed by strangers have softened noticeably.

Most of our out-of-town visitors are young and in uniform. British naval officers and fliers from the RAF share the bar with Americans, Australians and Norwegians. Occasionally you'll see the drab but efficient-looking khaki of a Commando officer and sometimes when certain Canadian regiments are passing through, you'll see a group of handsome lads in kilts.

People seem to welcome a chance to give these servicemen a pleasant off-duty time.

Not long ago, when Myrna Loy was dining with her husband John Hertz, jr., two kids from the Coast Guard stood at the bar for a long time debating whether they dared to ask for an autograph. These youngsters had seen three months of fighting in the South Pacific. That hadn't frightened them too much. But the prospect of a turn-down from a screen star certainly had them worried. Finally summoning up the courage to risk her displeasure, they approached the table. Instead of being snubbed, they were invited to join the star and her husband for supper. Much later in the evening, when Miss Loy had gone home, the sailors realized that, in their excitement, they had completely forgotten to ask for the autographs that had inspired the visit in the first place.

The customers seem more inclined to relax these days, and the visiting soldiers seem to appreciate that sort of atmosphere. Late one evening, Billy Gaxton, Ed Wynn and Victor Moore were in a clowning mood, and to the delight of the onlookers each had grabbed a waiter and began waltzing around the dance floor. I overheard a wide-eyed soldier remark, "I didn't know those guys were funny all the time."

Another time Dorothy Lamour came in with a party of friends. Two sailors asked if it would be possible to have their pictures taken with her. Dorothy not only posed for pictures, but insisted that they join her friends. She danced with them and made sure that they had an evening they wouldn't forget in a long time.

The stream of new faces from the armed forces had done a lot to employ the time of the debutantes. Before, they used to entertain among a small clique of friends, mostly boys they had grown up with. Now, they spend most of their time with soldiers and sailors from all parts of the world—and they are loving it. There are constant parties and farewell celebration festivities. Others are just get-togethers of boys and girls who dance and enjoy themselves.

One Sunday night, a pretty little debutante won as a prize a cocktail party for six people. She chose to do her bit for Uncle Sam. She called the U. S. O. and invited six blind date soldiers.

Big "coming-out" parties, as they used to be, are pretty much passe. The debs still entertain, however. The only difference is that now, when they give big dinner parties, they no longer select their escorts from Harvard, Yale or Princeton—they look to the armed forces entertainment committees for their stag line.

NEW REVOLT IN DEM RANKS AIMS AT JONES

Party Leaders Urged To Meet on Advisability of Ousting Chairman.

(By Associated Press)

State Democratic Chairman Darrel S. Jones found himself under fire again today as prominent party members continued their quest for an answer to the federal patronage puzzle.

Joseph M. Sullivan, a Democratic state central committeeman, said he had asked Chairman Al Horstman to call an immediate meeting of the committee to consider whether to dismiss Jones.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who has accused Jones of failing to produce federal jobs for the party's faithful in Ohio, said he planned a gathering next month to discuss the patronage picture.

Sullivan indicated his request for "a meeting at once" was made after he was informed of Ferguson's "pending 'rump' caucus."

The Springfield, O., Democratic leader said he telegraphed his plea to Horstman yesterday, asserting he could "see no advantage in Ferguson's meeting" since only the state central committee holds the power of "hiring and firing" a state chairman.

"I hold no brief for Jones," he added. "I took my stand against him 15 days after he was appointed. . . . If he is to be removed or retained, I think it should be done in a perfectly regular manner and not by any high pressure methods."

At Dayton, Horstman said he did not receive Sullivan's message last night, but added there probably would be no meeting of the central committee until its regular assembly in about 30 days.

Ferguson's session was scheduled tentatively for early August, and some persons said a showdown between the auditor and Jones could be expected.

Ferguson said he would ask National Committee Members Charles Sawyer and Mildred Jaster, National Chairman Frank Walker, county chairmen and elected officials to attend.

At a similar gathering last May, Jones was given until July 1 to produce more federal jobs or else. Congress upset this schedule, however, when it failed to appropriate funds for numerous appointive jobs.

Ferguson indicated the chief purpose of his meeting would be to learn "where Ohio stands in Washington."

Health Chief Warns Blackberry Pickers of Woodticks.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Rocky Mountain spotted fever apparently is unusually virulent this year and Ohioans, especially blackberry pickers, should guard against the woodtick which carries the disease Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, said today.

Normal death rate from the disease is 20 per cent, but two of three persons contracting the fever in Ohio died this year. Persons bitten by woodticks should remove the insect immediately and treat the bite with iodine, Markwith declared.

Melvin John Stuckling, 12, of Louisville and Ray Jones of Monroe county have died of the fever, and Imogene Erb, 2, of Marietta is ill with it.

MacKenzie Calls Turn Few Hours Before Duce Quits

NEW YORK—(AP)—Yesterday, Dewitt MacKenzie turned the analysuc spotlight of his column, "The War Today," on the impending crisis of the war.

Right at the top of the list, as one of the things to watch for, he wrote "there's no doubt that a vast number of Italians are fed up with Mussolini and the war. Many of them would be glad to throw the duce overboard and make a separate peace, if they had leadership. If that leadership appears, something is likely to break."

Within 24 hours after MacKenzie's column appeared in print, (it was on the editorial page of The News-Journal) the leadership appeared and Mussolini broke.

MacKenzie's daily commentaries are serviced by the Associated Press to more than 800 papers daily, and constitute the most widely read war analytical column in the country.

GENERAL TIRE WORKERS BACK

War Production Resumed at Struck Akron Plant After Union Votes.

(By International News Service)

AKRON—War production today was resumed at the General Tire & Rubber Co., where 1,200 workers voted to return to work after a four-day walkout which union leaders said was a "spontaneous wildcat strike."

At a mass meeting, members of the CIO-United Rubber Workers of America voted to go back to work by a margin of "four or five to one" according to Emmet B. Harper, union president.

The union executive board told the membership, "this thing has gone far enough and a continuation of the strike will hurt no one but yourselves."

The strike at the plant which manufactures military tires and other war equipment was the second to occur within a week. Workers struck over the discharge of six employes and other working condition grievances. C. J. Jahant, vice president in charge of production, informed Harper that the company is willing to discuss problems with the union in the belief that the grievances can be corrected without calling on the War Labor board.

Sherman Dalrymple, president of the URWA, and Frederick Bullen, WLB disputes director, telegrammed workers urging their return to the plant. Production was described as nearly normal by plant officials following the return of the night shift Sunday.

WALLACE TALK BRINGS SPEEDY GOP REACTION

Republicans Say He Tries To Take Public Mind Off Domestic 'Messes.'

WASHINGTON—Vice President Wallace's bristling indictment of "isolationists" and "American fascists" provoked a Republican charge today that he was attempting to "take the public mind off the embarrassing messes of the administration" on the home front.

In what was regarded as a significant speech at a Detroit mass meeting yesterday Wallace charged that powerful groups "hope to take advantage of the president's concentration on the war effort to destroy everything he has accomplished on the domestic front over the last ten years."

The vice president said that some sail these groups "'isolationists,' others call them 'reactionaries' and still others, seeing them following in European footsteps, call them 'American Fascists.'" He defined them as "small but powerful groups which put money and power first and people last."

Senator Nye, (R-ND) told reporters it seemed clear to him that Wallace was attempting to shape the vital issue of the next presidential campaign between so-called interventionists and isolationists.

"Such an issue would at least let the administration take the public mind away from the embarrassing messes the administration has left in its path during these late years," Nye declared. "But as one non-interventionist, I would be quite willing to go to bat on what Wallace called the isolationist front.

"The day of deckoning is close at hand for Wallace and the whole administration,' the North Dakota senator continued.

"It isn't going to help their cause merely to recite how the peons of South America love Roosevelt for what he has done for them with American dollars. Americans are getting a bit weary of all the nice things we do for others and are wondering when we are to start looking after American interests for a change."

Wallace said in his speech that he found that "the lowliest peon on a recent trip to South America looked on President Roosevelt as the symbol of his dearest aspirations in the peace to come."

Wallace speech reportedly was one of a series he plans to make in the near future, revolving around the post war plans he and others in the administration have espoused.

RETAILERS PLAN TWO BIG EVENTS

Shangri-La War Stamp Sale To Be Combined With Annual Dollar Day Sale.

Mansfield Retail Merchants association today were planning for a double-barreled sale event the last three days of this week. One is the annual dollar days merchandise sale and the other is the Shangri-La War Stamps sale.

Advertising from association members in the Wednesday News-Journal will be directed to the sale of war stamps. No merchandise advertising will be carried. Thursday evening these retailers will advertise their special Dollar Day merchandise values for Friday and Saturday.

The Shangri-La war stamps sale is a national sales campaign for retailers to sell $1 worth of war stamps to every citizen during July. Funds raised are to be used to buy a new airplane carrier called the Shangri-La.

Mansfield's goal is $40,000. Each store will be given a quota according to the number of employes. The employe's quota will be $20 in stamps.

Employes are being urged to ask each customer to buy at least $1 worth of stamps. Purchasers will receive a string tag indicating that they have bought the stamps in addition to their regular purchases.

Halloran edged toward the door, and, as I saw his disappointed face, I realized that the housekeeper's professional poise, gained in dealing with thousands of situations where she must suppress all emotion of any kind, had kept her from making any comment upon his handiwork.

"Wait a moment, please," I said to him. Then I turned to the housekeeper.

"Mr. Halloran is naturally anxious to know if he has pleased you," I said. "What do you think of my disguise?"

"It is simply perfect," she said, with a warmth of approval in her voice which I was sure must satisfy even the make-up artist.

"If I had not expected to find you in disguise, I never would have known you. I am sure that when you have practiced a bit, no one will guess you ever were anything but a hotel maid."

Halloran Leaves Them.

"Thank you," Halloran said gratefully, "and I wish you the best of luck, Mrs. Graham. And now, I will bid you good day."

"Goodbye," I answered, "and thank you for a very marvelous piece of work. I'll let you know when to come back here, and restore me to myself again as soon as I know the hour myself."

"I'll be waiting at home," he said. "It isn't very far from here. I should be here within fifteen minutes after your call. If that is too long, I can stay here in the hotel."

"Why don't you do that, anyway?" I said, beginning to visualize any number of emergencies which might demand a hasty return to my own personality. "Stay right here until I come down again. I'll send down for the newspapers and a magazine, perhaps."

"Thank you," he said, "but I have all I need right here."

Awaits Their Departure.

He drew a newspaper from his pocket, and, laying his hat and coat on a chair, waited, courteously standing, for us to leave.

As he walked to the door, the telephone shrilled, and the housekeeper looked inquiringly at me.

"It must be my husband," I said, trying to keep a tremor out of my voice. "He said he would let be know the instant that woman arrived."

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Styles Score Hit In U. S. A.

NEW YORK—Despite shortages and priorities, rulings and restrictions, American women remain the best dressed in the modern wartime world.

England has her utility clothes, which put excellent designs within reach of the shopgirl's purse. America has her WPB-controlled "body basic" silhouette, which trims yardage but makes no compromise in style or workmanship. England has clothes rationing. America depends upon economy of manufacture and distribution to avoid it.

Through all the wartime headaches of successive government rulings, American designers have continued to turn out smart, wearable clothes priced low enough for the slimmest budget.

Both England and America have their luxury trade, of course, but this represents a small percentage of the population. Test of the efficiency and ingenuity of the clothing industry rests upon the quality and price of its mass production clothes. And it is in this field that America still excels.

This fall American women will find many changes in fabrics of their new coats, suits and frocks. Many of the old familiars will be missing. But the new wartime materials will be in many cases handsomer and more durable than the products of peace years. There will be less variety of weaves and finishes. Rayon crepes and spun types will be restricted to a half dozen or so of the most popular weaves. Woolens will be found in fewer novelty effects, more classic types. But the women who wants a 100 per cent virgin wool coat or suit will have no difficulty in finding it, whether she lives in a village or a metropolis. And the woman who is looking for the best quality tweed in a well-tailored "duration suit" will find that, too, priced to her pocketbook.

American Style: The coat above is that all-American favorite, the Chesterfield, in black 100 per cent winter-weight wool, with velveteen collar, four-gored back, double-breasted cut. The suit is Donegal type tweed, 73 per cent wool, 27 per cent rayon, with slim skirt, man-tailored jacket. The Ann Barton dress is spun rayon in a soft crepe wool effect, bright red, with detachable white collars and cuffs. All are mail order clothes, styled by Mary Lewis for mass consumption.

Whether she spends $200 or $20 for her winter coat, Mrs. U. S. A. will be assured of warmth, workmanship and style.

If she can afford to spend only one $5 bill on a new dress, that's all she needs to spend. She still can be well-dressed, if she makes her selection carefully, looks for simplicity and good workmanship rather than flashy trimmings.

Thus far the only item of clothing for which the American woman will have to hand over ration coupons is shoes. For the rest of her wardrobe she may suit her taste and her pocketbook. But Uncle Sam is depending on her to forestall the need for further rationing by buying only what she needs, when she needs it.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

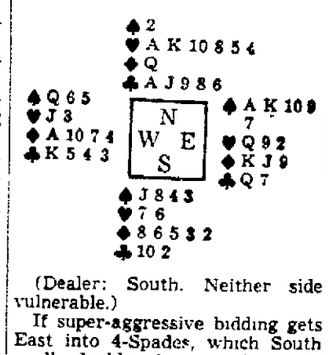
"The Authority on Authorities"

A SERIES OF "DONT'S"

Since the pleasure of any game depends chiefly on the attitude of the participants toward it and toward one another, it is appropriate that the new Laws of Contract Bridge place emphasis upon the "Properties of the Auction and Play" in an entire section devoted to them. They begin with a series of "dont's", introduced by these words: "A player should refrain from," and give this list:

1. Varying the formulae used in calling. A footnote explains this: The recommended calling formulae are: "Pass (avoid "I pass" or "no bid"); "1-Heart" (avoid "I bid"); "I-no Trump" (avoid "without" or "without a trump"); "double" (avoid stating the number of tricks or the denomination doubled); "6-Spades" (avoid "little slam").
2. Calling with special emphasis or intonation.
3. Passing or doubling with exceptional haste or reluctance.
4. Making a call with undue delay which may result in conveying improper information to partner.
5. Indicating in any way approval or disapproval of partner's call or play.
6. Giving by word, manner or gesture an indication of the nature of the hand held.
7. Making a remark or gesture or asking a question from which an inference may be drawn.
8. Giving unauthorized information as to an incident of the auction or play.
9. Volunteering information which should be given only in response to a question.
10. Requesting, except for his own benefit, a review of calls or a placing of cards played to a trick.
11. An unnecessary hesitation, remark or mannerism which may deceive the opponents.
12. Attracting attention to the score, except when necessary to do so for his own information.
13. Calling attention to the number of tricks needed to complete or defeat the contract or to the fact that it has already been fulfilled or defeated.
14. Playing a card with special emphasis.
15. Playing with undue delay when the play does not need consideration.
16. Preparing to gather a trick before all four hands have played to it.
17. Detaching a card from his hand before it is his turn to lead or play.
18. Failing to keep the tricks in correct order and distinct from one another, or allowing some to be placed on the opposite side of the table.
19. Watching the place in a player's hand from which he draws a card, and making any inference therefrom.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If super-aggressive bidding gets East into 4-Spades, which South madly doubles, how should North play after the heart 7 is led?

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, July 27.

While there is definite promise of progress and expansion, it is advisable to move quickly and decisively if real constructive work is to be accomplished. Also there may be certain dangers from false steps or mismanagement as well as due to acting with impetuosity. It may be wise to re-arrange plans or schedules in order to side step certain dangers. It should be a good time for writing and business or professional pursuits, but refrain from social and domestic bickerings.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of progress and advancement, with affairs moving at high tempo. The way may be beset with dangers, which may be averted by well planned moves, but moves in the right direction and not on erratic impulse. Change, travel contacts, deals with agencies or those in high place should find favor. But keep the social and domestic scene clear, and harmonious and business as well as professional association should prove lucrative and pleasant.

A child born on this day may be blessed with much creative ability and versatility. With precaution, and restraints of personality it should enjoy a successful and happy life.

Some Aids For Your Memory

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The forgotten memory is being restored. While we can't, as research indicates, improve our methods of memorizing and of holding in our heads what we have memorized, we retain what we have learned by recalling it often and using it.

Let me suggest some good ways of memorizing, keeping in mind that the school child and college student, in order to succeed, must learn by heart many facts and symbols and that his learning by heart selections of such connected materials as poetry and prose is a relatively small part of his memorizing needs. Let me suggest some simple rules.

Rules For Memorizing.

1. Help the child pick out the facts and symbols he will need to have in his head the next several years or his lifetime and to set himself to learning them by heart. Some of these items will be learned in the form he finds them, such as 8 and 6 are 14. The circumference of a circle is 3.1416 items its diameter, the symbol for hydrochloric acid is HCl. Many other facts will be imbedded in whole paragraphs, pages or chapters, as in history, literature or science.

2. Help your child, as he studies from printed matter, to turn each paragraph into a few words of his own and then to memorize those facts in proper sequence after he has so interpreted and expressed them. Once the fact is so grasped as to be expressed in the learner's own words the opportune time has arrived for him to make that fact a permanent part of his memory so it will be usable when needed.

3. After a simple mechanical fact or symbol has been memorized, or a fact turned from the printed page into the learner's words and these learned by heart, the more ways these facts or symbols are used in practical problems and experiences the more sure they are to stick.

Memorizing In Sequence.

4. Make and repeat only such connections in your mind as you will want to keep. Memorize things only in their proper permanent sequence. As you memorize poetry and prose, to repeat over and over the entire selection or a goodly portion of it will be the most effective way, in case you can keep up courage and effort. But when you study a list of words in order to spell them accurately from memory or a number fact like 7 from 13 leaves 6, keep repeating each single unit, even use it in a practical setting, before attacking another unit.

Q. Do you answer letters personally?

A. I certainly do, about 100 of them a week, and as promptly as I am able. I never print in my column what the writer asks me not to print or marks "confidential." I do not answer unsigned letters in my column. The letters you see there are already answered personally, with my own hand on my typewriter. Sometimes I even have to buy a stamp for the privilege of trying to help somebody. However, most persons who write for a personal reply, or for a bulletin, thoughtfully enclose a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Auxiliary Has July Meeting At Eagle Hall

A "Suggestion box" was the new idea introduced at the Friday meeting of the Ladies auxiliary of the Eagles lodge when they met at the Eagles hall to make plans for helping the war effort. The box will be left in the lodge hall for all members to leave their proposals and schemes in which the auxiliary can take part.

At the business meeting final plans were made for the auxiliary picnic which will be held Aug. 9 at South park. The picnic is scheduled for 6 o'clock. Members are asked to bring a picnic lunch and their own table service. Chairman of the picnic is Mrs. Ethyle Duffey. She will be assisted by her committee and will furnish beverage and entertainment.

The victory committee was appointed for the month of August and includes Mrs. Hermagene Harris and Mrs. Tom Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter was awarded the victory prize by the organization.

The auxiliary's next regular meeting will be held at the lodge hall Aug. 5 at 8 o'clock.

Sport Podge

Westbrook Country club golfers opened their annual tournament Saturday with play in the qualifying round extending through next Sunday.

This fact I pointed out to Fred Huntsman, operator of Coolridge golf course.

"We're not going to be rushed into our tournament out here this year," Fred declared. "We were way too early last year and as soon as the tournament was over, golf interest died.

"Some of our very best golf weather comes in October," Huntsman pointed out, "and we expect to make use of that weather.

"So we won't start our tournament out here until September, and it will run into October."

Oddly enough the golfers agree with Fred. The climax of the season can come too soon for the good of the sport.

I saw some really hot golf out at Coolridge Saturday. Roy Bose, No. 3 man in the Moose league, was the stick wielder.

Now a No. 3 man in that league is expected to shoot 48 and 50, with maybe an occasional dip to 45.

So what did Bose have? Just 35-38—73. No. 3 man?

Roy was shooting the game just like he knew how, too, with all the confidence in the world. Stymied by a tree on No 6, he said: "Watch me go over that tree and stick." He did, and then sunk a 30 foot putt for a par 3.

And that's the way he went all the way around, a birdie on No 4, and pars sprinkled all over the place.

It was just the kind of round I've shot time and again—sitting on the clubhouse porch with my eyes closed.

* * *

Il Duce is ill period today. Mussolini has been muscledoutie.

The guy who was with his army in Sicily "in spirit," is fresh out of spirit.

The jutting-jawed comic Valentine who bluffed his way into the big league had nothing on the ball for World Series play.

British Golf Star Invited

Cotton Wanted For Ryder Cup Matches.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Henry Cotton, former British open golf champion and for the past three years a member of the Royal Air Force, was invited today to come to the United States for a series of exhibition matches with American stars.

The invitation to Cotton, who has been forced to abandon his war career as a flier because of injuries, was cabled by Fred Cochran, tournament manager of the Professional Golfers' Association

If Cotton accepts the invitation it is hoped he will be able to arrive in the United States in time to participate in the Ryder cup-Hagen challenger matches at Detroit Aug. 7-8. He has been asked to play with the Challenger team captained by the veteran Walter Hagen. The matches are for war relief.

Cochran here for the final round of the All-American open tournament, also announced the playing personnel of the Ryder cup and Challenger teams.

The Ryder Cup members will be Craig Wood Jimmy Demaret, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum, Vic Ghezzi, Harold (Jug) McSpaden and Gene Sarazen The Challengers will be Hagen, Sam Byrd Bob Cruikshank, Melvin (Chick) Harbert, Willie Goggin, Clayton Heafner, Jimmy Thomson and Joe Kirkwood, Sr.

Ed Dudley, president of the PGA, has been invited to play and will be allowed to choose his team

Pirate Hurlers Clicking

Threaten Brooklyn Hold On Second Place.

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IT WAS only a question of time until Frank Frisch came up with something that would at least give the hoss-laugh to the old gag that baseball is a young man's game. Now that he's found it, he has his Pittsburgh Pirates parading up the trail.

Including yesterday's twin win over the Brooklyn Dodgers—the Pirates have put together four victories in a row and ten out of 13, not counting one time, since the all-star fuss, and they are close enough to second place in the National league to reach over and give the Bums a G.I. haircut.

Inasmuch as the Pirates have no season-long regular batting .300 and the club itself sports a puny par of .256 for the year up to now—it is obvious the boost of the Bucs lately lies in the elbowing forces Frisch has been rejuvenating . . . More particularly, it rests on three pitching arms.

These arms are hung on the sturdy shoulders of Dipsy-Doo Rip Sewell, Baffle 'Em Bob Klinger and Wally Hebert, who has been bouncing around quite a bit since his last trip up to the majors—with the St. Louis Browns, in 1931.

These three have won 29 of the Bucs' 48 games to date. Klinger tossed a two-hitter to take yesterday's opener and Hebert backed it up with a four-hitter in the afterpiece, and the Pirates rang the cash register 7-1 each time. Sewell already has 15 wins this season.

Of course, all this is just so much extra gravy in the stew for the Cardinals of St. Louis, because they also grabbed off a pair of decisions yesterday, knocking over the Boston Braves 5-1 and 7-3 to run their winning string to eight straight and skyrocket their National league lead to 8½ games.

Over in the American league the Yankees hoisted their lead to seven full games by splitting with the Chicago White Sox The Sox squeaked through in the opener 2-1 while the Bombers hit the jackpot 6-3 in the afterpiece.

The second place Detroit Tigers dumped Philadelphia 5-0 in their first game, but the Athletics came back for a 3-1 edge in the second tussle. The Boston Red Sox belted the Brownies twice — 7-0 and 6-4. Vernon Kennedy's seven-hitter gave Cleveland an 8-2 win over the Washington Senators in their curtain-raiser, but the Nats went on a four-run fourth inning spree to take the nightcap 7-2.

* * *

The New York Giants' losing run reached seven straight as the Chicago Cubs clouted the Coogan bluffers twice by 2-0. A 14-hit attack gave the Cincinnati Reds a 7-3 win over the Phillies, but Jimmy Wasdell knocked two runs home to pace the Phils to a 3-1 nightcap win.

Record Crowds Looked For at Belmont Track.

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—As the 28-day Saratoga race meet opens at Belmont's scenic course today, the glamorous setting of the old spa will be missing—another victim of the war—but the famed meet will cling to its heritage even in the dollar marked shadows of New York's skyscrapers.

For the first time since Civil war days, Saratoga will miss its annual influx of visitors, people who came to make money and stayed to spend it. Novels have been written and motion pictures filmed of the long and glamorous history of the meet and now, for the first time since 1864, it has been taken out of its familiar setting by the problems of war-time transportation

Anticipating record crowds at Belmont, Saratoga officials have more than doubled the prize money for the numerous historic stakes. "Name" horses—such as Count Fleet — will be missing from the barns but the fields will be larger and better-balanced and thereby aid the handle.

The Count—terror of the three-year-olds—is being brought back slowly for a fall campaign. But this, too, will aid the mutuel handle, for with the Fleet at anchor there will be wide-open races. The Hertz Hurricane would have ruined the entry list for such stakes as the 41st running of the Wilson, the 16th running of the Whitney, the 74th renewal of the Travers and the 63rd edition of the coveted Saratoga cup. With the brown beauty in the barn, it'll be a mob scene at the entry box—and a resultant field day at the two-dollar windows.

The Wilson, over the mile route, is the first feature on the card. Won by Equipoise, Discovery and War Admiral, this year it has drawn such three-year-olds and up as Apache, Devil Diver, Shut Out, and The Rhymer.

On the following Saturday, Aug. 7, the six-furlong Saratoga Special for two-year-olds will be run. The next week-end feature is the $10,000-added Travers for three-year-olds, and the starting gate will be jammed because of the Count's absence.

The Grand Union Hotel stakes for two-year-olds and the $20,000 added Saratoga handicap for three-year-olds and up headline the Aug. 21 card. Alsab, Our Books, Devil Diver and Shut Out headline the field in what had been expected to be the Fleet's first handicap run.

The Saratoga cup, a mile and six furlongs event for those three and over, will wind up the meet on Aug. 28. This is the stake that Exterminator won four times hand running and later was taken by Gallant Fox, Ekky, Twenty Grand and War Admiral. With the Count out, it apparently rests between the Diver, Market Wise, little 'Sab and Our Boots.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Because Denny Shea of the football Dodgers popped off the other day about "town teem" grid outfits that didn't intend to play full time this fall, the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh combination is protesting to Commissioner Elmer Layden . . . In baseball this would be the cue for a howl of "cry babies," but then no baseball club would pass up such a chance to start a hot feud . . . The Phil-Pitts have a ready-made reply they'll use able bodied citizens who can hold down a tough job and play football too, no 4-F's who have to be wheeled onto the field.

MONDAY MATINEE

Pitcher Elmer Riddle of the Reds is in his fifth season of big league baseball and hasn't made an error yet . . . From recent reports, it appears that football writers next fall will have to copy their leads from the business notices, like: "Seven marines from Minnesota and four Iowa sailors, trading under the name of Northwestern university," etc. . . . Joe Neville, the Delaware, O., harness racing maestro, is trying to promote a match race between pacers Adios and Senator Abbe . . . Catcher Al Lopez calls Rip Sewell's blooper pitch the "Ephus" ball . . . "Ephus doesn't mean anything," Lopez explains, "but neither does the pitch."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Frank B. Ward, Youngstown, O., Vindicator: "It has not been more than three or four years since the top mentors in the college world were condemning the practice of colleges using 17-year-old players . . . But today, with the wartime emergency taking most of the older boys, those same coaches are mulling over the possibilities of 17-year-old gridders — and they are showing no shame."

Post war planning: Since he has been in the navy, Lieut. Hal Schumacher, the former Giant flinger, has developed a knuckleball . . . Wilfred Hetzel, the basketball trick shot artist, spent 163 days in the hospital before he was discharged from the army air force, but he reports that he originated 30 new types of fancy shots . . . Dick Worthington, former U. of Washington football lineman, and Wendell Broyles, the university's publicity man, took their physical tests the same day. . . . The husky Husky was rejected for a trick knee but Broyles, who took his exercises on a typewriter passed with flying colors.

INDIANS SCHEDULE MORNING BALL GAME

This game was postponed from May 21, and a game regularly scheduled on Aug. 18 will be played at 3:30 p. m. that date. Separate admissions will be charged.

Two Tie For Open Crown

Jug McSpayden Meets White In Play-Off.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)— Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Merion, Pa., for 16 years one of golf's journeymen, and "Buck" White, an unknown from Greenwood, Miss., engage in an 18-hole play-off today for the championship of the $10,000 All-American open tournament.

McSpaden and White tied for the title at the end of the regulation 72 holes yesterday with aggregates of 282, six strokes under par for the distance. The winner of the play-off will receive $2,000 and the loser $1,400, the spoils of the richest links event on a war year calendar.

McSpaden and White started the final round deadlocked for the lead with Clayton Heafner, the burly army sergeant from Spartanburg, S. C., and Melvin (Chick) Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich.

McSpaden was out with a brilliant 34 but slipped on the back nine to 37 strokes.

White was out in 37 and apparently had thrown away his title chances. But on the back nine the genial Dixie shot-maker settled down and came back in 34 strokes for his total.

One stroke back of the pace-setters came Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., and Harbert who furnished most of the dramatics of a thrill-filled final round.

Nelson started the day four shots off the pace. He still was well back after shooting the first nine in 36. But on the back side he became a links magician to come home in 32 strokes. He reached those nine final greens in 16 shots and had 16 putts, just falling shy of a title slice.

Harbert, 28 year old army aviation cadet, appeared to have the championship cinched after 66 holes of play. One stroke in front of McSpaden, three in front of White and five ahead of Nelson. Harbert took bogeys on three of the next six holes to toss away the golden opportunity.

Nelson and Harbert took $900 each as their share of the prize purse.

Two strokes back of Nelson and Harbert was Gib Sellers of Hot Springs, Ark., who had a final round of 71 for a 285 total.

Jack Grout of Chicago, Heafner and Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y., were next with 286's and one sroke farther back was Bill Kaiser of Louisville, Ky.

Patty Berg, Minneapolis, Minn., won the woman's open with a 72 hole total of 307. Elizabeth Hicks of Long Beach, Calif, was second with 312.

Haegg Responds To Record Plea

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (U.P.) — Track fans were convinced today that there was no limit to the record-breaking possibilities of Gunder Haegg as the Swedish ace prepared to head for Cleveland and another stop on his tour for the benefit of the U. S. Army Air Force fund.

Haegg received his closest competition Saturday and responded with one of his best performances to hang up a 4:05-8 clocking for the fastest mile in American history. He beat Gil Dodds of Boston and Bill Hulse of New York to lower Glenn Cunningham's old American standard, set in 1934, by 1.4 seconds.

His time was also within seven-tenths of a second of his own world mark, already lowered to 4:02 6 by his companion, Arne Andersson, in Sweden.

Red Birds Renew Climb Up Ladder

(By Associated Press)

The Columbus Red Birds, whose July drive up the American Association ladder stalled as soon as they turned to the road last week, are climbing again.

Now in third place, they moved within two and a half games of first place Milwaukee yesterday by tripping the league leaders twice, 2-1 and 5-2. They also advanced within a game of second place Indianapolis, which could get no better than a split with St. Paul. Indianapolis won the first game 5-2 and St. Paul took the second 5-4.

Last place Kansas City built up a three game winning streak by disposing of Toledo, 4-3, in the opener, but then lost, 4-2. Louisville won its first game with Minneapolis, 9-5, and saw the Millers grab the second, 3-2.

DAVIS SIGNED

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Young Bee Bee Wright, 18-year-old welterweight from the coke oven neighborhood of Clairton, Pa., and Al (Bummy) Davis have signed for the 10-round semi-final match of a Forbes field fight card August 9 in which Fritzie Zivic, former world welterweight champion, and Young Kid McCoy of New York will meet in the main event.

Newark O. Rookie Trims Boudreau Beard

Indians Stretch Streak to Seven Straight Wins, Then Lose to Nats.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A young Washington rookie bearded the Cleveland Indians—literally and figuratively—to end a victory string at seven games yesterday, when four second string hurlers proved less than adequate to maintain the Tribe's winning pace

Right handed Jim Mertz served the Indians a 7 to 2 loss in the second half of a doubleheader, signalling the first shave in seven bewhiskered days for Manager Lou Boudreau and his three coaches. The team's brain trust made a pact a week ago to shun the razor until the Indians tasted defeat.

The Tribe won the first game 8 to 2, when Vernon Kennedy pitched seven-hit ball while his teammates fashioned 13 hits.

Ray Poat started the nightcap and retired the first 13 batters in three and a third innings. The Senators banged out two hits and Boudreau pulled out Poat, sending in Mike Naymick in the fourth Big Mike, with two men on base, walked the first two men to face him, without throwing a strike, walking in a run and yielding the mound to Joe Heving.

Heving also walked in a run and gave up a two-run single before ending the inning and his day's chores.

Boudreau's third guess was Al Milnar, who yielded runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Mertz, a former American Legion flinger from Newark, O., held the Indians to four hits until the ninth.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds and the Philadelphia Phils play the finale of their four-game series this morning in a "swing shift" contest starting at 11 o'clock.

The Reds hold the edge for this series winning-two and losing one. Ray Starr, who lasted but two heats against the Phils Saturday, will do the hurling for the Redlegs while Lefty Jack Kraus or Anton Karl will oppose him.

The two teams split yesterday's doubleheader, the Cincinnati team winning the opener 7 to 3 but losing the nightcap 3 to 1.

Elmer Riddle went the route in the first game for his thirteenth victory of the season despite a shaky first inning in which the Phils pounded out all of their runs.

Rough treatment was handed the Reds by Richard (Kewpie) Barrett in the nightcap who doled out seven well-scattered hits. The Phils climbed on Ed Heusser for nine hits—three of them doubles.

Nazis Scramble to Assure World Italy Will Fight On

'TRESS ILLNESS AS REASON FOR 'RESIGNATION'

'opaganda Agency Declares Marshal Badoglio Represents 'Fascist Party.'

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Transocean, the azis' overseas propaganda arm, s begun an intensive drive to nvince the world that Italy will main in the war on the side of rmany despite Benito Mussolini's ster, the office of the war infor-ation reported today.

Transocean is still trying to ut across the Nazi propaganda ne that Mussolini is "ill" and s using the technique of quot-g "neutral sources" to sup-ort its propaganda.

The Nazi agency, in a wireless ess transmission for American nsumption, quoted Swedish pa-rs as "emphasizing Italy's" un-anged determination to continue e war." In the same transmis-on, Transocean backed up the e on Mussolini's "ill health" by claring that Swedish papers mphasized that he laid down e leadership of Italy shortly be-e his sixtieth birthday."

Meanwhile, in a transmission the far east, under a Hel-nki dateline, Transocean quot-d the "Stockholm correspon-ent" of a Finnish paper as re-orting that "Mussolini is very eriously ill," Transocean also ut out a similar story under an nkara dateline.

Quoting vague "political and lomatic circles" in Turkey, ansocean tried to make it ap-ar that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, w Italian premier, was a "rep-sentative of the Fascist party." So far as can be determined, the rman press has not yet pub-hed anything for home consump-n regarding Mussolini's resig-tion. All indications point to e fact that Germany, and poss-y Adolf Hitler himself, were ken completely by surprise. The influential newspaper Ham-rger Fremdenblatt, usually re-ded as the mouthpiece of Ger-n Foreign Minister Joachim n Ribbentrop, appeared only s morning with a euglogistic bute to Mussolini in connection th his forthcoming sixteenth thday.

With a strangely anachronistic g, this article said: "On the tain's bridge stands the best n, unbending, and with flam-faith."

WORLD CAPITALS SURE ITALY'S ON WAY OUT OF WAR

Rome's Move Viewed by Most Nations as Step Toward Peace or Surrender.

From around the world today came speculation and assertion that the exit of Benito Mussolini as premier of Italy had spelled out the prelude of a separate peace for Germany's Axis partner.

In capital after capital the reaction, although frequently only semi-official, was the same. It was that a tottering Italy had moved one step nearer to an exit from the war, whether through early armistice or easier capitulation to marching Allied armies.

Some of the reaction follows:

LONDON: There was quick unofficial speculation that, since Italy had moved toward fulfilment of the Allies' initial condition of surrender, the British and American governments soon might present terms for "honorable capitulation" to King Vittorio Emanuele and Marshal Pietro Badoglio. At the same time, however, there was evidence of an attitude not to relax and wait for Italy to quit, but rather to "pour it on" for a smash finish.

WASHINGTON: Despite initial official silence, there was wide speculation that in choosing Marshal Badoglio to head the military government, the king had more than nodded at the Roosevelt-Churchill invitation to the Italian people to rid themselves of their Fascist government. Since Badoglio is a Royalist and anti-Fascist, is was regarded in many quarters that his appointment might well be followed by dissolution of the Fascist party and a bid for separate peace.

MOSCOW: The Russian people were electrified by the news of Mussolini's downfall. The immediate reaction, as heard in homes and on streetcars and subways, was that Germany had suffered a severe blow. Some said they felt this might mean that Italy would drop out of the war in a few weeks, and that even if she carried on, her resistance would be only half-hearted.

NEW YORK: Former President Herbert Hoover, in a broadcast from his Palo Alto, Calif., home to a Jewish conference, said Mussolini's resignation "will give heart to every man and women in Axis-dominated countries — it is the handwriting on the wall." In New York's big Italian quarter there were impromptu celebrations in the narrow, crowded streets.

ALGIERS: A Frenchman who reflects French feeling but who would not permit his name to be used said the appointment of Badoglio may portend Italy's withdrawal from the war.

GERMANY: German propagandists asserted in press radio reports that Mussolini's exit was "among developments running counter to the Allies' wishes." Their makeshift line apparently was that the appointment of Badoglio's military government "means Italy's will to resist continues unchanged." One dispatch declared that "the change of government brings no visible change in the German-Italian relationship."

CHUNGKING: There was rejoicing in the streets. And Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, like other members of the cabinet, appeared to be in high spirits.

ASHLAND DRIVER FACES CHARGE

ASHLAND—Ivan Wahl, 1025 Troy street, was to appear in police court here today to answer to charges of driving without a driver's license following a freak accident in which he miraculously escaped injury.

Wahl was driving a car owned by David Pence of Ashland. He was going north on Center street when the brakes locked causing the car to rise up on the front end and turn end over end.

Passersby found Wahl sitting on top of the wreckage in a dazed condition. The front of the car was demolished. Wahl escaped with but a few scratches. He did not remember how he got out of the car, he told police.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

John Grice, colored, today was sentenced by Juvenile Judge S. H. Cramer to six months in the Toledo workhouse for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The sentence was suspended on the provision that Grice stay on his defense job and refrain from gambling. He was charged with gambling with a 16-year-old boy.

BRANDS BAN ON ARMY COLUMN PURE POLITICS

Clare Luce Aroused By Action of War Department Banning Her Copy to Soldiers.

(By Associated Press)

GREENWICH, Conn. — Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) charged today removal of her column from the China-Burma-India Roundup, a weekly soldier publication in New Delhi, India, was "out and out politics and part of an obvious policy to keep anti-administration writing and comment from the boys overseas."

"It becomes perfectly obvious," she asserted, "when you see that Drew Pearson's column has been substituted for mine. If anyone's column is controversial, his is, and, of course, he is an administration writer."

The blond representative, author and playwright, who plainly showed she was peeved over the turn of events, noted that her column was barred a week after editors of the paper had declared she was their candidate for vice-president.

"They were only joking, of course," declared Mrs. Luce.

Before her election to congress last fall, Mrs. Luce traveled in the Orient.

She said she had received a cabled copy of an editorial in which the editors of the Roundup "squawked about the removal of the column," which was her 13th weekly contribution.

The war department ordered the army publication to stop publishing the column, a spokesman said, because Mrs. Luce had announced she intended to discuss political subjects.

The war department spokesman said it was a long-standing army policy that material involving matters of political controversy should not appear in army publications.

He was arrested Sunday night on Springmill street.

LOWER PRICES DEVELOP OVER DUCE OUSTING

Financial Circles Cautious as They Attempt To Learn International Score.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Irregularly lower prices developed in today's early stock market transactions as financial quarters attempted to assay the ousting of Mussolini and chances for a nearby collapse of Italy.

Losers of fractions to a point or so at a fairly active opening were Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Loew's, U. S. Steel, Sperry and United Aircraft. Minor gains were recorded for General Motors, General Electric, Sears Roebuck and Distillers Corp.

Holders of the metals studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, as a result of an appreciable upturn in bookings this month most mills would be at peak capacity through the remainder of the year. In some cases, it was added, consumers have asked deferment of delivery to 1944, thus releasing current output for more essential needs.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Grains opened lower today as traders endeavored to adjust themselves to the news from Italy. There was moderate selling on the principal that war means higher and peace lower prices.

Wheat opened ⅞-¾ lower, September $1.44⅞-¾, December $1.46⅞-1½, and rye was down ⅞-1½, September $1.05-1.04¾.

THEATERS

Shep Fields Here.

The only band of its kind in the world comes to Mansfield tomorrow. Shep Fields and his new music take over the stage of the Madison for a one-day engagement playing four shows at 3.05 p m, 5.15 p m, 7:35 p m., and 9.35 p m. Fields played the Madison for a one-day stand last summer. Featuring Meredith Blake and Ted Berry, the Fields aggregation has played some of the most famous entertainment places in the nation. The orchestra features nine saxophones and a rhythm section but no trumpets or trombones. The screen attraction is "Get Going."

Constant Nymph At Ohio.

Some years ago Margaret Kennedy wrote a book that instantly became a best-seller. The book entitled "The Constant Nymph," became a hit play on Broadway and now has been made into a picture by Warner Brothers. "The Constant Nymph," based on the novel and play, is now at the Ohio. Starred in the film are Charles Boyer and Joan Fontaine. The supporting cast includes Alexis Smith, Brenda Marshall, Charles Coburn, Peter Lorre, Dame May Whitty and Jean Muir. The picture tells the story of a young girls love for a great musician who learns too late that she is the inspiration for all his music.

Tale of Norway.

"Edge of Darkness," the Ritz's top attraction based on William Woods' novel of the same name, is the story of a Norwegian fishing village, its simple, peace-loving people, and of the brutal Nazi boot that stamps out freedom wherever it goes. When the villagers are secretly armed by the British they wait in readiness to strike. The rebellion is touched off and the village rises en masse against its oppressors. Allan Jone and Jane Frazee star in the co-feature, "Rhythm of the Islands." Also in the picture are Andy Devine, Mary Wickes and Ernest Truex.

East Side Kids.

The tough "East Side Kids" take over the screen at the Park in "Clancy Street Boys." Other attraction is "Something to Shout About" starring Don Ameche.

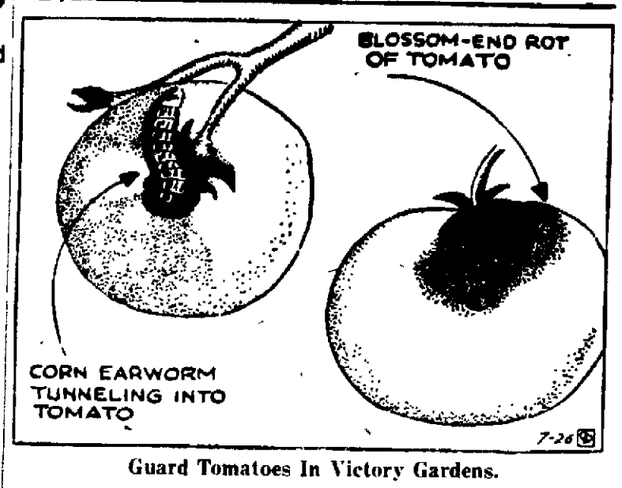
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Guard Tomatoes In Victory Gardens.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association.

IF AS A Victory gardener, you have been hovering over your tomato vines barely able to wait for the first harvest, take care that the corn earworm does not get to your best tomatoes first.

Corn earworm, also called "fruit worm," is a green worm which bores into earliest maturing tomatoes in late July and early August and eats out cavities. The corn earworm in the act of tunnelling into a tomato is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Since insecticides are of little value in checking the depredations of the corn earworm, sanitation is one means of checkmating these worms. Collect and destroy infested tomatoes as soon as discovered in your tomato plantings.

Take steps also to guard your tomatoes against attacks of what is known as blossom-end rot. This rot, illustrated in the Garden-Graph, appears as a water-soaked area on the blossom-end of the tomatoes. The affected area later turns brown or black and shrivels.

Blossom-end rot is caused by the breakdown of cells due to an uneven supply of water. To prevent its appearance avoid dry locations for your tomatoes, water thoroughly in dry weather or mulch them with grass clippings, straw or peatmoss.

ARMY EXTENDS ALCAN HIGHWAY

Plans 600-Mile Addition To Alberta, Together With Giant Pipe Line.

(By International News Service)

WINNIPEG, Can — U. S. army engineers have announced plans for extending the south end of the new Alcan International Military highway 600 miles from St. John, Can., to Edmonton, capital of Alberta.

When this sector of the highway, having a 24-foot concrete lane and 10-foot gravel shoulders, is completed, its overall length will be increased to 2,250 miles.

At the same time plans were revealed for bringing oil via river, lake and pipe line from Fort Norman on the edge of the Arctic Circle in the Mackenzie river valley, to St. John or some other contiguous point. Roughly the combination water-pipeline route will cover more than 1,000 miles.

Twenty-five years ago a charter was granted for a pipe line from Fort Norman to Edmonton, but the project was tabled until a military necessity became a factor.

At the present time a Fort Norman refinery ships its product by tankers up the Mackenzie river to Great Slave lake in Mackenzie province, whence the intervening six miles to Fort Resolution, Mackenzie, is traversed via pipe line.

Extended southward from Fort Resolution to St. John in Alberta, the pipe line will cross two mountain ranges and many rivers and will constitute a colossal undertaking.

Reduction of cost and time in transportation are key factors.

The army now is martialing large forces to put in the south addition to the highway.

The coordinating skyway traffic system with a succession of airports will also be extended over the new highway sector.

With a more favorable terrain, settled plans and utilization of some gravelled roads covering the route, top speed is anticipated in completing the improvement.

Many transportation problems will have been solved when the highway reaches Edmonton, a railway and highway transportation hub with feeders to Vancouver, B. C., the U. S. border and eastern Canada, as well as to many points in the United States.

ALLIES PINCH AXIS TIGHTER INTO 'CORNER'

Americans Take Another Town and 7,000 More Prisoners In Sicilian Advance.

of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr. Trapani fell after the capture of Marsala and Palermo, the other two main ports in that area.

Axis Admits Troops In Sicily Are Doomed

LONDON —(AP)— An admission that the Axis forces in central Sicily are virtually entrapped by the advancing Allied armies came today from the German-controlled Vichy radio.

"The final assault on Catania seems imminent," said a broadcast recorded by the ministry of information." Five-sixths of Sicily now is in Allied hands and it is not certain whether the Axis forces in the center of the island will succeed in reaching the east coast in time."

Essen Latest City To Feel Allied Air Wrath

LONDON — (AP) — RAF heavy bombers made a concentrated attack on Essen last night while Mosquito aircraft struck at Hamburg and Cologne and swept over northwest Germany, the low countries and France, the British announced today.

Twenty-five bombers and one fighter plane were listed as missing in the far-flung overnight operations and five enemy aircraft were reported shot down.

The air ministry announcement said the raiders encountered good weather over the target area at Essen and preliminary reports indicated the bombing was concentrated and effective.

The great formations of night raiders scarcely had returned to their bases when fresh squadrons of Allied raiders swept out across the English channel this morning to continue the smashing aerial offensive—the greatest in history—by daylight.

Last night's raids followed a mighty series of round-the-clock blows delivered by both the RAF and the United States Eighth Air force, British bombers striking at battered Hamburg Saturday night and American airmen heaping destruction on the smoking ruins yesterday in their deepest penetration into Germany.

Yesterday's raid by the Americans, the mightiest day assault of the war, was made at the cost of 19 planes. The heavy bombers beat off 200 fighters and weathered a hail of flak to loose new destruction on the submarine nests and port facilities at Hamburg, the aircraft factories at Warnemunde, the seaplane base at Wustrow and the shipyards at Kiel.

Black smoke was rising four miles above Hamburg when the Americans reached their target, left by the 1,000-plane British raid the previous night, which was the greatest ever launched against a single target. The British dropped 2,300 tons of explosives and incendiaries on Hamburg at a cost of 12 bombers.

Russians Threaten Vital Nazi Railway

LONDON—(AP)—The spearhead of the Russian attack bearing down upon the important Nazi-held stronghold of Orel was within six miles of the vital Bryansk railway following gains of 2½ to 5½ miles yesterday, the Russians announced today.

A Soviet communique reported the Red army had gobbled up 30 more villages once held by the Germans as the counter-offensive moved toward complete encirclement of the enemy base.

The Russian gains were registered in the face of stubborn opposition by the German defenders, the communique said, but declared German losses in the latest fighting mounted to well over 2,000 dead and heavy loss of armored equipment.

Most rapid progress in the three-pronged drive on the city was made again by the northern Soviet column.

South of Orel, the Russians said, Red army troops were "breaking down resistance" and had made gains, dislodging the Germans from a number of villages.

Jap Base at Munda Gets Worst Pounding

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—(AP)—American bombers, in the mightiest aerial assault of the Southwest Pacific war, dropped 186 tons of bombs on Japanese positions at Munda, New Georgia, yesterday.

More than 200 planes—Liberators, Flying Fortresses, Mitchells, Avengers, and Dauntless bombers with strong fighter escort—participated in the attack, and only one failed to return.

The communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters made no comment on the results of the raid beyond saying that "the area was thoroughly bombed."

Six hundred miles to the west, the Royal Australian Air Force executed the heaviest attack yet made on the Gasmata airdrome on the south coast of New Britain and destroyed the radio station and grounded aircraft.

Plan No Attempt To Relieve Kiska

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON— (INS) —The navy announced today that army Warhawk fighter planes carried out ten bombing and strafing attacks against Japanese positions on Kiska and reported numerous hits on the runway and among gun emplacements.

HEADQUARTERS, Alaska Defense Command — (AP) — The Japanese evidently plan no attempt to reinforce the belleaguered garrison on Kiska and indications are they may be preparing to sell the Aleutian island as they did Attu —at the price of a single garrison, no more.

Only one attempt has been made to get surface vessels to Kiska since the Attu battle and that was a flat failure. United States planes caught four transports, sank a couple of them and sent the others scurrying back.

Bombers returning from the enemy's Paramushiro base report there are no great concentrations of Japanese power there.

Detector Device Now Marks Flaws In Steel Rails

MILWAUKEE—(U.P.)—Chalk up another victory for the railroads in their effort to speed up vital wartime traffic and prevent rail tieups before they occur.

Under direction of William Brazitis, the engineering department of the Association of American Railroads has perfected a device that can detect hidden or surface flaws in steel rails which would cause untold thousands of dollars damage to wartime freight in wrecks from sudden rail breaks.

The detector car was built in the Milwaukee road shops here, and made its maiden trip recently between here and Green Bay, Wis. Brazitis reported it worked perfectly except for minor adjustments.

Built in two units—one operating, the other detecting—the car travels as fast as 45 miles per hour on power supplied by a 130 horsepower motor. This motor also furnished power for the generator needed to energize the magnetic pickups resting on each rail. Brazitis revealed that an electro-magnetic field energizes the rails, making them a semi-permanent magnet. The pickup apparatus on the car moves through this residual magnetism and surface or hidden rail defects are set up in a local field, carrying an impulse to amplifiers similar in construction to a home radio.

Surrender Of Italy Would Open 'Bloodless' 2nd Front

direction the blows would be struck and have concentrated their fighter defenses in the west.

Airfields in northern Italy would cut the distance Allied bombers would have to fly to reach Prague, home of the great Skoda munition works, from 750 miles to 300; the distance to the aircraft factories at Vienna from 800 to less than 300, and even Berlin itself from 650 miles to about 400.

Bombers flying from England could cross Germany and land in Italy returning the next night or day and the Germans would never be able to set their defenses to meet the blows. The strain on the already battered Luftwaffe would be increased 100 per cent.

Great areas of Hitler's creaking communications system would come under the deadly fire of Mustang fighters and bombers and the train-busting fighters of the RAF.

Better weather conditions in the Mediterranean would increase the hours of operation.

Air men such as Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder and Lieut. Gen. Carl "Tooey" Spaatz believe with such bases Germany could be crushed without any great land battles.

Little Jimmy, 2, Didn't Know He Couldn't Wake 'Mummy'

er at the Parsel Air Supply Depot near Shelby and while she was gone on her job during the day Mrs. Hart took care of Jimmy.

It was customary for a friend who was also employed there to pick her up every morning. This morning he stopped as usual at 7:20 and when there was no response to his repeated honks he went to the door of the Hart apartment to inquire concerning Mrs. Kelly.

Mrs. Hart who had been wondering about her small charge went to the foot of the stairs and called. There was no answer but Jimmy's childish babblings. Alarmed she went up the steps and into the bedroom where she found Mrs. Kelly dead.

Acting Coroner Blake Kohler arriving a few minutes later in answer to Mrs. Hart's call pronounced Mrs. Kelly dead from natural causes and set the time of death some four hours before.

Mrs. Kelly is survived by her husband and son, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Zimmerman, and four brothers, Noel, stationed with the navy in Florida, Ben, Marty, and Herbert, jr., all of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home pending word from Pfc. Kelly concerning funeral arrangements. Mansfield Red Cross, at the request of Mrs. Kelley's parents, has been attempting to contact him.

Soldiers Cited For Conduct In Gasoline Fire

HILL AIR FIELD, Ogden, Utah —(U.P.)—For "heroism beyond the normal call of duty" three midwestern soldiers at the army air base here have received commendations and recommendations for the award of the Soldier's medal for conduct during a gasoline fire that threatened valuable army equipment.

The commendations were given by Col. F. D. Lynch, commanding officer at the Army Air base, to Pfc. Robert L. Capel and Pfc. Thomas N. Capel brothers, Kansas City, and Pfc. Edmond L. Hessenflow, of Council Bluffs, Ia.

Through their joint efforts, the three men successfully drove away from valuable army equipment standing nearby a gasoline truck and trailer that had exploded and burst into flame. As Hessenflow drove the blazing inferno away, the Capel brothers donned asbestos suits and succeeded in disengaging the burning trailer.

Lynch, in a communication to Maj. Gen. Walter M. Frank, commanding officer of the air service command, Patterson Field, O., recommended the award of Soldier's medals to the three men.

EXPECT U. S. TO INSIST ON TRIAL

Capital Sources Say Mussolini Can't Escape Justice By Giving Up Office.

Mussolini to Allied military authorities. At the same time, it was said, if and when Mussolini is surrendered to the Allies by Italy, he will be tried by a military court on the spot, sentenced by that tribunal and the sentence executed immediately.

One high official had this comment about Mussolini: "Mussolini is a marked man. He is not going to be allowed to get away with what he has done. He had better jump in the nearest lake if he expects to escape the stern justice of the Allies."

Another official declared that the United Nations could not permit Mussolini to escape punishment for his international crimes because of the precedent it would set for Hitler and the Japanese war lords. While Mussolini has been regarded in Washington as an unfortunate "stooge" of Hitler, officials feel he should not be spared on that account.

It is recalled that both Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill appealed to Mussolini not to join Hitler and warned him it would mean his downfall. After those warnings, officials say, Mussolini can expect no mercy from the United Nations —now that he has fallen from power.

The suddenness of Mussolini's downfall came as a surprise to official Washington. Officials had not dared to hope that Il Duce, noted for his bombast, would give up so quickly. Among the factors which influenced him to quit were believed to be these:

1. Realization that he had lost his hold on the Italian people and on the Italian army, as evidenced by the eager surrender of his fighting forces in Sicily and the jubilant reception of American troops by the civilian populace in that invaded island.

2. Outright failure to secure any increase of military aid from Germany.

3. Fear of a revolt within the Italian army against the Fascist regime that might cost the dictator his life on the spot or at the least, pave the way for a quick United Nations' triumph.

Million Gnats Being Studied At Texas University

AUSTIN, Tex. — (U.P.) — Some people might think that gnats are only pesky, bothersome little creatures, but a half-dozen University of Texas professors go for them in a big way. In fact, the university's gnat collection is the largest in the world; and it also has a sizable collection of flies.

These insects are valuable for research on genetics, and the insects—about 1,000,000 of them—are kept in bottles in a special air-conditioned laboratory. They even have a special diet of a mixture of bananas, yeast, karo syrup, agar and water. Food rationing is no bother to them.

The genetics research is being conducted with the aid of a $35,000 Rockefeller Foundation grant to the university. Part of the funds was used to equip a fly-catching bus, which has traveled 32,000 miles in trapping the insects.

The university collection includes gnats from Florida, Rocky Mountain area, Idaho, Utah, Yellowstone Park, Grand Canyon, Arizona, Mexico, the Texas Big Bend country, Korea, Japan, Hawaii, Canada, Europe and South Africa.

Martial Law Set UP Over Wavering Italy

Mussolini Reported Taken Prisoner As He Seeks To Flee Country; King Makes Badoglio Premier.

ew premier issued a special order of the day stating at the voluntary Fascist militia "is an integral part the armed forces of the nation and with them, as ways, cooperates in the common work and intenons for the defense of the fatherland."

The 250,000 blackshirts—once Mussolini's private my—are the best equipped group among Italy's ilitary forces of about 2,000,000 men.

One Italian political source in London, who cannot be further identified, predicted that Italy would be out of the war against the Allies within a week. Others were not so optimistic.

This source credited the bombing of Rome and lated events, particularly the Vatican radio's denial Axis propaganda concerning the raid, for the anunced "resignation" of Mussolini and his replaceent by a veteran, 71-year-old soldier who was one the dictator's critics and a close friend of the king.

In a royal proclamation broadcast to Italians last ght, the king announced he had accepted Mussoi's "resignation" and had installed 71-year-old arshal Pietro Badoglio—bitter foe of Il Duce and scism—as head of a military government "to stand ainst those who have wounded the sacred soil of ly."

"The war continues," the aged marshal told the people a proclamation announcing that he had assumed supreme mand of all Italian armies and calling on Italians to y around the king.

But the conviction grew that Italy—her cities shattered, her empire vanished, internal unrest and violence rowing, and a mighty Allied army pounding at her hreshold—had shaken the "guilty hierarchy" of Fasism and had taken a necessary step toward eventual eace.

The immediate effect on Germany and Italy of the end Mussolini's 21-year reign as dictator and international y could not be estimated immediately.

Five hours after the Rome radio stunned Allied nations the announcement, the Berlin radio announced only, an overseas announcement, that Mussolini's resignation been accepted, and added: "It is believed in Rome that change in government was due to the health condition Il Duce who fell ill recently."

There was no indication last night that the German eople had been informed, and Tokyo broadcasts ignored ie development completely.

There was little doubt, however, that the fall of the man se political views and ruthless military policy eventually ded the world into totalitarianism and democratic camps the most staggering blow yet dealt at Axis prestige.

The Italian king's choice of Marshal Badoglio to take instead of some fanatical Fascist like Carlo Scorza—had lately led the frantic attempts to bolster Italian ale—strengthened the conviction that the monarch was rmined to end Fascism as a peace necessity.

Hitler's army, however, remained an unknown factor in rmining the king's next movement as German forces virtually dominated Italy since their arrival at Il e's call for reinforcements.

Hitler is faced with the choice of taking over Italy mpletely to keep her in hand or withdrawing to the enner Pass and tightening the boundaries of his uropean fortress."

Previous estimates of Hitler's strength in Italy pointed he latter as his most possible choice. Doubt has been essed that German forces presently in Italy are strong gh to defend the country without Italian support, and ay lines linking Germany with Italy have been so tered by Allied air attacks that immediate heavy reinements were considered hardly possible.

Official comment was not immediately forthcoming but ie Minister Churchill, who has aimed some of his best s at Il Duce and referred to him at various times as ered lackey," "whipped jackal," "hyena," "pinchbeck ar," and "Mussolini flop," worked at his desk until this morning and the activity at Whitehall was greater had been noted in a long time.

ondon newspapers took the view that Mussolini's fate ld not alter the immediate Allied plans and that Italy ld be hit hard regularly until she accepts the only terms ident Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have said d be settled on—unconditional surrender.

Badoglio says 'the war continues'," said the London graph. "So be it. He will find that the Italians will not more readily for the king and himself than they did Mussolini, because in both cases they will be fighting Germany alone and they know it."

gns Point To Break-Down Axis Control Of Balkans

(By Associated Press)

STANBUL, July 25 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Signs have to appear in the Balkans indicating the possibility of akdown in the Axis structure there, with Hungary and ria showing the most symptoms of nervousness.

mier Bogdan Philov of Bulgaria has issued a decree making lgarians over the age of 16 subject to "state premier laws," ing that the government be- much of the sabotage and ssian activity in the coun- the work of youths in and universities.

ther decree forbids Bulgar- leave their homes or drive ars during an air raid alert penalty of being fired upon t question.

velers from Bulgaria re- a general state of unrest tenseness there, and predict that a series of swift Allied successes in the Mediterranean might cause a revolt against the Bulgarian alliance with the Axis.

Travelers from Hungary say that the same condition prevails in that satellite country.

Surprises, perhaps swift collapse of the Axis grip on southeastern Europe, may be in the offing.

y PIERRE J. HUSS
S Staff Correspondent)

ED HEADQUARTERS IN I AFRICA — The battle spirit of Allied forces in Sicily soared today at news of Premier Mussolini's resignation.

The immediate consequence of Mussolini's fall, after 21 years of dictatorship, undoubtedly will be a nosedive in the morale of Italian fighting forces.

Everything points to the fact that Mussolini lately saw the handwriting on the wall and that, in desperation, he laid his ... before Hitler last Monday after sensing the growing hostility toward him and Fascism on the part of the Italian people and the crown.

But Hitler, unlike Il Duce, probably will ride the storm to the bitter end, wildly spilling oceans of blood in occupied countries and even in the reich itself, and kill himself rather than follow Mussolini's example and resign.

Other fanatics of the Nazi party also are likely to hold out to the very last, crush every uprising and try to hold the army in line until the final crackup on the battlefield.

However, regardless of how Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels sugar-coats his announcement of the news from Italy, the German people are in for a painful shock when they picture Hitler standing alone like an abandoned war lord watching his own doom speeding toward him from the valleys across the Alps.

The fall of Mussolini is a body blow to Hitler, regardless of the effect on the military situation. It will cause the German people to reflect on the possibility of taking the bridle in their own teeth and throwing out Hitler and the Nazis, although such action admittedly will not be as easily accomplished in Germany as in Italy.

The acrid gloom and fury of temperamental outbursts which have pervaded the atmosphere of the Hitler-Mussolini meeting last Monday, as the two dictators discussed the bitter reality of their situation, hardly can be realized.

Mussolini undoubtedly pleaded desperately at first for unrestricted aid which Hitler was unable to grant. When the reichsfuehrer very likely pointed out that only northern Italy could be defended, Mussolini probably served notice to Hitler that he would quit.

History some day will reveal the drama of those moments.

Here's Picture Story of Rise and Fall of Little Caesar

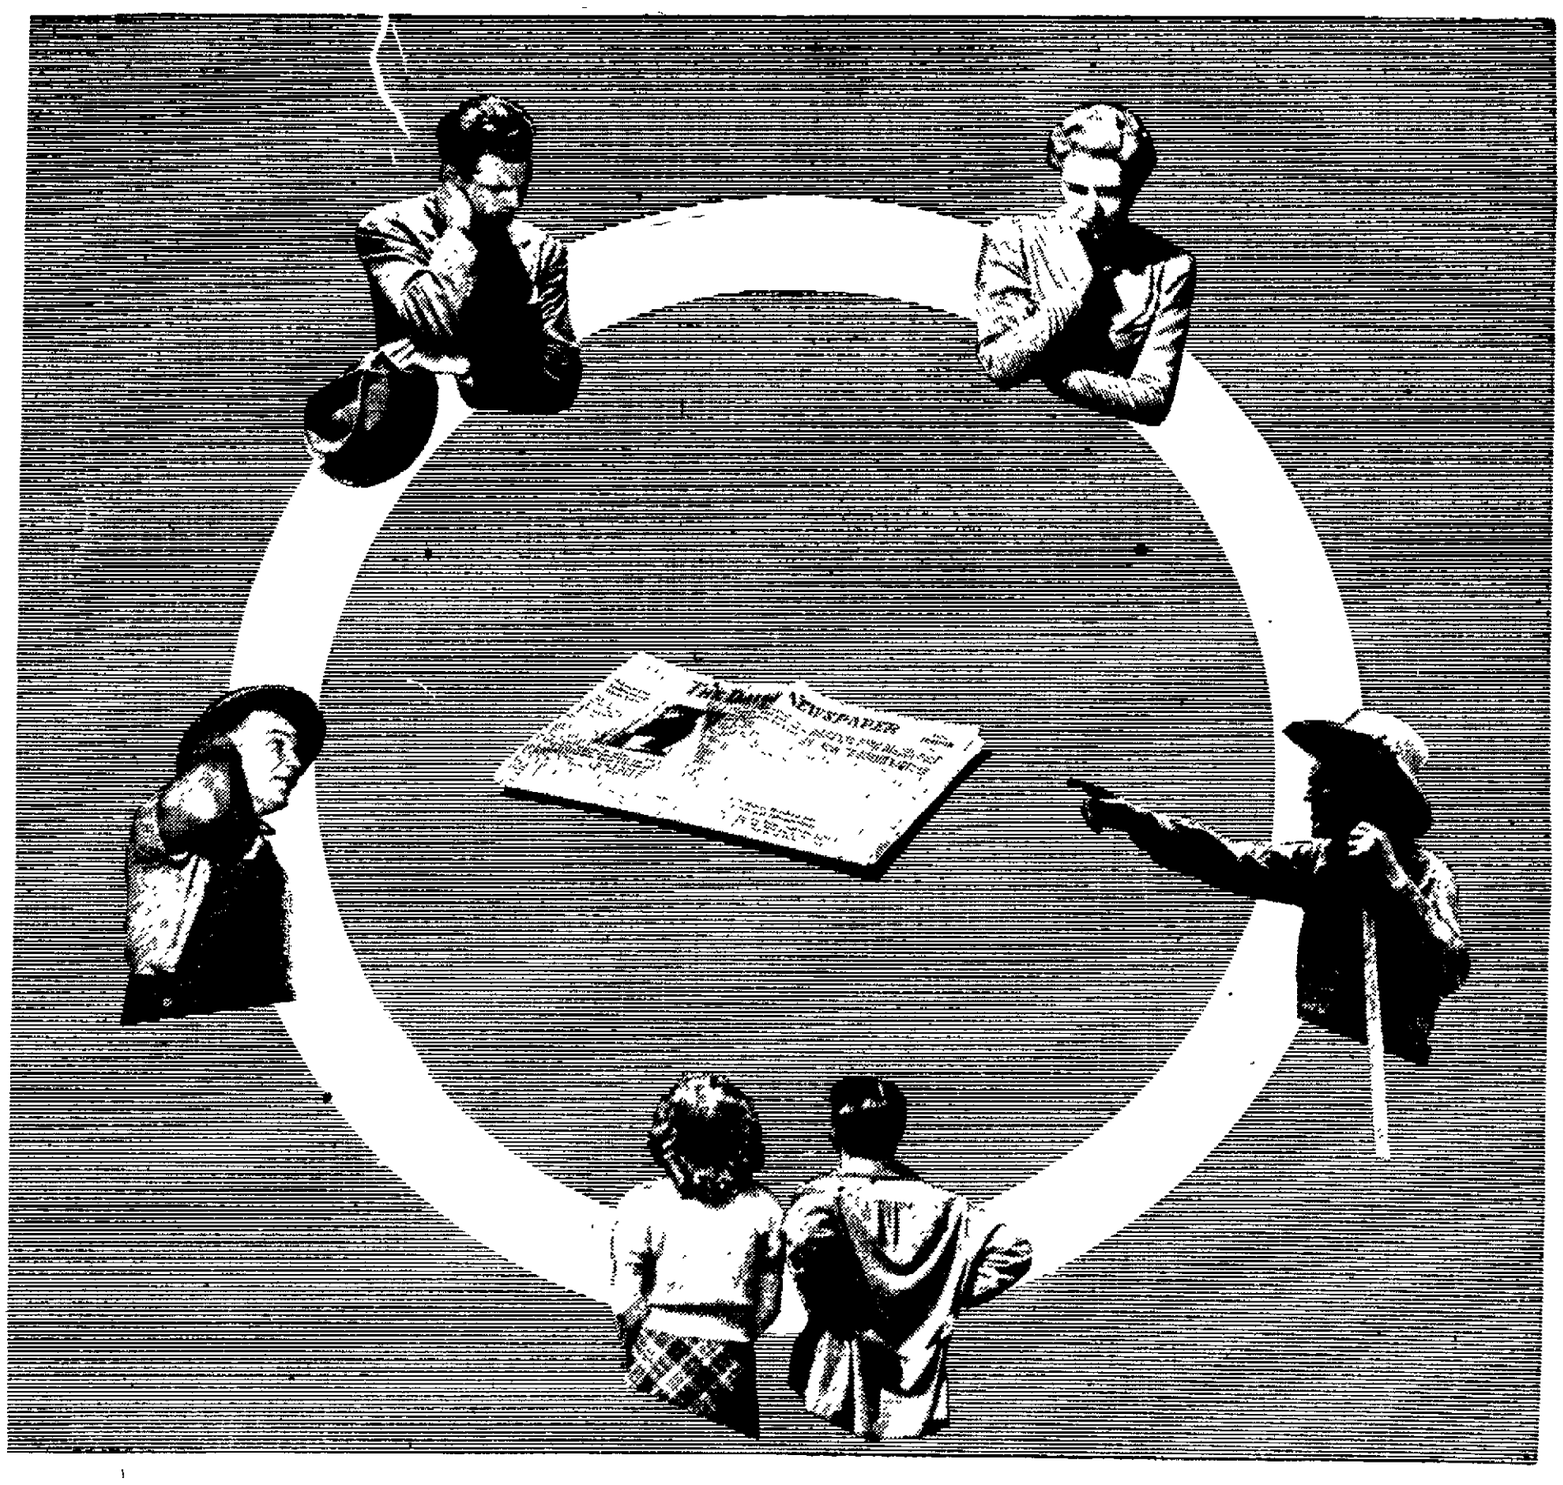
In 1922, Benito Mussolini gave birth to Fascist Italy. He would, he vowed, become a modern Caesar, restore the grandeur and empire of ancient Rome, change history for centuries and make his name feared by all the world. Today, 21 years later, with Allied armies in Sicily and threatening the mainland, he is out—perhaps a prisoner. His empire is gone. The Italian people are hungry, discouraged, tired of war. Here are the highlights in the career of the man who wanted to be Caesar and failed miserably.

Mussolini reached power as a result of chaotic post-war conditions in Italy. At first his program was appealing and popular. He began to crack down on crime and make trains run on time. Here cheering thousands of soldiers swear loyalty to him.

In the thirties, Little Caesar sprouted, defied the League of Nations, invaded Ethiopia. In speeches he defied the world.

Mussolini looked on rising Hitler as his tool, joined Germany and then Japan in anti-Comintern pact. In 1937, after seeing Hitler in Germany, Mussolini thought he was senior partner.

Mussolini soon found himself the silent partner, Hitler, rescued him in Greece and in Libya, then occupied Italy. Here stands Il Duce symbolically — with a Nazi general at his back.



The eyes of the nation are focused here every day

People today want all the news, all the facts, all the details they can get . . . to help them understand the events that are reshaping the world . . . to help them do their part in winning the war. • That's why they're reaching so eagerly for their newspapers these days . . . and reading them more thoroughly than ever before. They know that nowhere else can they satisfy their hunger for news that's full and clear and graphic. And nowhere else can they get so quickly and completely the wartime regulations and instructions they must have to guide them in their homefront tasks. • This intensified interest in both the news and the advertisements in today's newspapers, attested again and again by exhaustive scientific studies, is what makes newspapers so effective a medium for the informative and helpful messages of wartime advertisers.

Italy's Next Move Awaited

NOT SINCE the Pearl Harbor attack on Sunday, December 7, 1941, has the entire world been aroused to such interest as resulted from yesterday afternoon's announcement from Rome that the 21-year dictatorship of Benito Mussolini had been abruptly ended and that King Victor Emanuel was again at the helm in distressed Italy.

Appointment of Marshal Pietro Badoglio as head of the military government, coupled with assurance of intention of Italy to continue in the war, leaves interpretation of the Italian situation difficult for the moment, although the break from Mussolini control is quite generally seen as a first move toward Italy's withdrawal from the war—as soon as this can be done without danger of destruction by Germany.

Insofar as the vast majority of Italian people is concerned, the tie-up with Hitlerized Germany has been obnoxious from the start and was only accomplished through the domination of Mussolini and his Fascist following.

Whatever else may come of it, and whatever may be the fate of Mussolini, it cannot be doubted that this move marks the first important rupture in the European Axis and that, however long it may be deferred, Hitler will eventually follow the Mussolini course in relinquishing power, either voluntarily or through compulsion, in order that Germany can also be spared the utter annihilation that would otherwise be necessary.

Victim of Insane Assassin

ASSOCIATED with the feeling of sorrow over the tragic death of John S. McCarrens, general manager of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, there is a keen sense of regret that the way is left so easily open for mentally unbalanced persons to become assassins.

There is no consolation in the fact that the alien slayer immediately took his own life after firing the shots that caused the death of Mr. McCarrens. That Kobrak was insane is undoubted but that he was any more mentally deranged than he had been for a number of years may be seriously questioned, and it is the fact that he was permitted to move about without surveillance, habitually armed with a revolver, that reveals need for closer scrutiny of psychopathic cases BEFORE a tragedy has been enacted rather than AFTERWARD.

In this instance Mr. McCarrens had been a benefactor of his slayer and probably had no hesitancy in admitting Kobrak to his office for a conference, although letters found in the murderer's pocket indicated long premeditation of the act, including suicide.

Occurrences of this kind have been too frequent to be lightly brushed off as "unavoidable". Truth is that the theory of "personal liberty" has been stretched to the point of according unrestrained freedom to persons whose recognized criminality or condition of mental unbalance would prescribe permanent segregation in a suitable institution. Valuable lives cannot continue to be traded for worthless ones without protest.

Fruit Scarcity Sends Up Prices

NATURE appears stubbornly unco-operative with governmental demands for increased production of foodstuffs, insofar as the fruit crop is concerned, and co-ordinators do not seem to be able to do anything about it.

Cherries were practically unobtainable in Ohio, berries have been on sale in limited quantities at almost prohibitive prices and now it is apples and peaches that have skyrocked beyond reach of the average purse.

The unusually wet spring is blamed for the fruit crop shortage—and high prices are defended as necessary to make the return from a small crop equal that of a large one. Surely, if he sets his mind to it, Henry A. Wallace can do something about the weather.

Traffic Lights Out at Midnight

EXCEPT for motorists addicted to careless driving, it is unlikely that turning off traffic lights at midnight will be considered important, or dangerous.

In cities where traffic lights are less numerous than in Mansfield it is the habit of motorists to approach all intersections carefully and to observe the common rule that "the car to the right has the right of way."

If accidents are to be avoided, there will be need, of course, for slower approach to intersections, even on main thoroughfares. Parents should explain this to children who are "out with the car" between midnight and 3 a. m.

Teaching 'Good Sense'

VARIOUS names have been chosen for high school courses designed to fit young people for store or office jobs after graduation. In one city such a course is called "Personal Regimen" and a teacher explains that the girl student is given a basic knowledge of office manners.

She is taught to wear simple and suitable clothing to office, factory or other job where she is employed. She is taught that gum-chewing is never done in working hours. She learns for the first time the values of "Please," "Thank You," and "Yes, Mr. Smith," instead of the "Say," and "That's Right," and "OK" which had theretofore been almost her entire vocal expression.

Thousands of homes have failed to instill the fundamentals of courtesy and good sense. They have let the movies set standards of artificial glamor and unreal romance. Some schools do what they can to counteract flimsy standards, through courses of this kind.

What's To Become of Men?

THE GIRLS have a new accomplishment. They are learning to be athletic coaches in boys' schools. New York university announces that a class of 70 women are learning to be sports instructors. They will demonstrate everything except perhaps the shot-put.

At this rate, what, after the war, will become of mere man? Science teaches that in nature the unnecessary tends to disappear.

"All roads lead to Rome"—but at last reports some of the railroads were rather twisted.

Seek Light on Lease of Airfields

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Certain of Elmer Davis' lieutenants in the Office of War Information are none too happy about the notion of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge doing a reporting job for American newspapers on the round the world trip of a senatorial group. Two of the senators are assigned to the job by the Truman committee, which has been hitting hard and letting the chips fall almost regardless of political consequences.

These two are assigned to look into nearly everything our government is involved in abroad, from airfields to lend-lease, and from whether the tank is regarded by the fighting men as obsolete to whether there are any more defective engines or parts in the planes this country has made.

Now with this barn door type of target, it is almost unthinkable that the Truman committee senators, not to mention the others, will not run across a lot of things that will make good headlines back in the United States, material which some of the OWI lieutenants believe should be treated very carefully indeed from the standpoint of preserving morale not offending our allies, and maintaining confidence in our political as well as military leaders.

It is not a question of censorship—of giving information which might be of aid or comfort to the enemy. There is not the slightest dismay at the office of Byron Price, which is responsible for censorship, at any thought of anything that Senator Lodge may send the newspapers about the trip.

MR. PRICE knows Senator Lodge, and declines to worry. Lodge is not only an experienced and very capable newspaper man, as he had demonstrated in Washington as well as Boston long before entering politics, but he has had army experience, too. He knows perfectly well what sort of news will give the enemy an advance signal on a punch and what will merely annoy some government bureaucrat.

But there is some concern in various administration quarters about the public reaction here to the terms and arrangements—and sometimes the lack of them—about the air bases this country has been so busily constructing all over the world. Some of these leases have been made by the army, some by the navy, some by lend-lease, and some, it is said, by other government agencies.

ONE thing that is certain is that up to a few days ago the heads of various U. S. aviation concerns had very little information as to the terms of these leases, especially as to how the air bases and ports will be used AFTER the war. They would very much like to know, for instance, whether certain strategic air fields in various parts of the world will be open to American air lines in the postwar scramble for air transport business, or whether American "occupation" as it has been termed by one official, wil lconclude with the peace treaty.

There are little points which gravely concern the men interested in commercial aviation after the war which would not be of the slightest interest to the army, navy and lendlease administration. Charges, for instance, comparable to port charges for ships. Restrictions, as to whether "foreign" planes could take passengers and freight between certain air fields.

Few countries, for instance, permitted foreign steamship lines to transport passengers and freight in what they termed their "coastal" trade. U. S. coastal trade included Hawaii, and needed only presidential signature, the law having passed, to include the Philippines!

So, if that OWI monkey wrench is blocked, Reporter Lodge may have some interesting pieces for the home folks!

Health and Diet

By DR. CLENDENING

Hospital of Future

IF ANYONE wonders what can be done with our sudden excess of manpower labor after the war and thinks the WPA did all the building necessary for a long time to come, all he has to do is look at the downtown layout of our large and medium-sized American cities.

Of the dozen with which I am familiar only downtown Los Angeles does not look actually shabby, looks as if some business were going on there. Most cities enjoyed a building boom just before the automobile came into its own; when it did and people moved out into the countryside, little suburban business sections sprouted and it wasn't necessary to go "downtown" to market and shop; local movie houses and attractive little cafes replaced the night downtown theater and hotel life.

Outmoded Hospitals.

The consequence is that most American cities downtown now look like the relatives you used to send your old clothes to. The tired, shabby, empty buildings stand in discouraged rows, with real estate banners glued to the inside of their dirty plate-glass windows. The owners of downtown real estate are bewildered, afraid even to replace a cracked wash bowl for fear it may run into expense.

Here, then, is the opportunity of the planner with genius!

Among the many kinds of buildings that have become outmoded, the hospital constitutes an eminent example. The architect of the hospital that was built 25 years ago was just another architect: he grudgingly, after the plans were drawn, made some space for a laboratory in the cellar. Five years after the building had been occupied, they had to tear down some partitions to make way for an x-ray department, and later an electrocardiographic laboratory, and later a basal metabolism room, and now they are faced with making room for a laboratory of electroencephalography.

Twenty-five years ago a hospital was still largely a surgical hospital. During that time the habit of having additions to the family at the hospital instead of at home has come in. So one floor of the old hospital was remodelled for a maternity floor. One-third of a good, modern hospital is given over to medical cases. If anyone wants the consultation of an oculist, ear or nose and throat specialist, the patient has to be bundled down to the specialist's office.

The New Hospital Unit.

The Architectural Forum has just published a set of designs of buildings, foreshadowing postwar construction. The hospital unit is the work of Hugh Stubbins, jr.

One feature of the new ideas in hospital construction is that the of ground space and will be on hospital will occupy a good deal one, two, or at most, four floors—preferably two.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Runs Farm Like Shop

ON SUNDAY afternoon, we took the children to the pasture swimming pool, two miles northwest of our village. Here a farmer opens to the public every summer, a spring-fed swimming place, with a black donation box along his lawn where patrons may pay whatever they can afford for the privileges. There is shade, a picnic table or two, outdoor grill, etc., and a lovely pool among grassy hills.

While our children splashed—eleven of them in the two families—my wife and I talked with friends who moved last spring onto a potato farm.

"How do you like your new home?" (That was my wife.)

"Just fine. The new owner put in a bath and furnace—we have it as convenient as if we were in town." (That was his wife.)

"Let's see—who bought that place?" I asked.

"He's a pump manufacturer," explained the farmer tenant. "He's trying out the same tactics on his farm that have been successful in his shop for many years. He pays good wages, and nearly all his workers own their homes. There's practically no turnover of employment, and nearly all the men are part owners of the firm. They get a dividend out of the yearly profits so all of them are interested in making things go."

"How many acres of potatoes are you planting?"

"We have 89—and quite a drove of hogs. Those two things are our specialties."

"What kind of potatoes?"

"Cobblers and Catawdins. Seed came from Maine."

"How many horses?"

"NO horses! Three tractors—spray equipment—a good hog pasture."

"How many men working?"

"Three boys and I—all on salary, with commission."

"You mean, the more you raise, the more you get?"

"That's it. It's the same idea as shopmen who get a dividend. The youngest boy is 12, the oldest 16. They're all on the payroll. They all take an interest."

Hopkins Helped Poker Pal Jones Pull Some Chestnuts Out of Fire

WASHINGTON—Most criticized man in Washington these days is the president's White House companion Harry Hopkins. Harry gets it going and coming, not only from liberals, but especially from conservatives.

What most of the conservatives don't know, however, is that Harry works closely with certain conservatives, especially Jesse Jones.

What the secret of the Jones-Hopkins friendship is, no one knows. Their backgrounds have little in common except that both served as secretary of commerce.

Also both are fond of poker and Harry spends frequent evenings at Jesse's house playing until the late hours. Sometimes the president phones for Harry around midnight and asks him to come home.

On one occasion, no word of which ever leaked out, Hopkins went to extreme lengths to pull Jesse's chestnuts out of the fire. This was just after the Truman committee had exposed Jones's woeful lack of foresight in setting up synthetic rubber factories. Jones had ducked responsibility by announcing that the president had okayed the delay.

Rushing to the president's defense came Ed Stettinius, who had been in charge of the raw materials for the national defense commission. He prepared a letter showing how he had implored and besought Jones to start synthetic rubber production; how he had warned that we risked losing the Dutch East Indies and that rubber plants must be started immediately.

Stettinius's letter clearly showed that any alert cabinet member would have urged the president to okay rubber production, instead of urging him to delay.

But after the letter was carefully prepared and finally signed by Stettinius, Harry Hopkins stepped in and held it up. The letter was suppressed. Harry Hopkins, for some mysterious reason, jumped in to protect his old poker pal, Jesse Jones.

Exit Lowell Mellett.

INSIDE FACT about the exit of Lowel Mellett, former White House secretary, from the motion picture division of the OWI, is that he was asked to resign by Elmer Davis and OWI's new domestic director Palmer Hoyt.

There was nothing against Mellett personally or professionally. He was doing an A1 job with the picture industry. But there was a big chalk mark against him politically. The fact, that he had been on the White House staff, was a close friend of the president, caused his demise. It gave OWI critics a chance to say that OWI was the tool of the White House.

As a result Davis reluctantly asked Mellett to resign. Mellett agreed later, said he wanted to talk it over with the "Boss" first.

Following this, Elmer Davis got a phone call from the president suggesting that he talk to Will Hays, czar of the motion picture industry, before insisting that Mellett resign.

Davis called Will Hays. And Hays, one-time chairman of the Republican national committee and campaign manager of Warren G. Harding, went to bat for FDR's friend, Lowell Mellett.

However, Davis and Hoyt stuck to their guns. In the end Mellett, after further conversations with the White House, resigned. He is now attached to the state department, where Cordell Hull can use a good man.

Capital Chaff.

Creekmore Fath, the young BEW lawyer who was called to the White House and who spurred the president into stopping the American Cyanimid monopoly deal in Mexico, has been drafted. . . . The vice president of the United States suggested his deferment, but Fath was anxious to go. There will be loud cheers from Wall Street. . . . When the Czechs raised $12,000,000 for the cruiser Chicago they got little or no publicity. But when the Slovak league (which favored Hitler appeasement) raised $31,500 for three trainer planes, they got tons of it. . . . Long ill, Senator Bob Wagner of New York got back into his old stride during the closing days of congress.

WPB Encounter.

IT DIDN'T leak out at the time, but Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska almost peeled off his coat and took on an over-bearing WPB official just before congress recessed.

The hushed-up encounter occurred in the office of S. A. Blackman, a consultant in the fiber box section of the WPB container division. Wherry, a member of the Small Business committee, is a real crusader for small business. He was calling on Blackman to intercede for John E. Justice, a North Wilkesboro, N. C., furniture dealer who was having trouble getting cardboard cartons for mattresses and other household goods.

When the Nebraska senator entered the office, accompanied by Mr. Justice and Allen Thurman, liaison officer of the Small Business committee, he was told to "sit down and wait." Blackman was looking over some papers on his desk. The consultant didn't appear to be very busy, but Wherry patiently sat down. After watching a paper-fumbling exhibition for 10 minutes, Wherry walked over to Blackman's desk and explained that he had some urgent matters awaiting him at the senate and would appreciate a hearing.

"I'm busy," Blackman replied stiffly. "You'll have to wait."

"But I'm a member of the senate and may be mising some important votes," said Wherry. "I've got to get back. Maybe I didn't introduce myself clearly enough."

"Oh, yes, I know who you are, Senator," replied Blackman. "I told you I'd get around to you. Now please sit down."

Wherry held his temper and took a chair, but after watching the WPB official rustle papers for another 10 minutes, he again walked over to the desk, primed for action.

"I've got to get back to Capitol Hill," he fumed. "I want action now."

Blackman walked around his desk and faced Wherry.

"Now, look here," he snapped, "I've told you twice you'd have to wait until I got to you. I'm getting tired of you senators coming up here and asking special favors for your constituents."

Senator Wherry then blew up. Shaking his finger in Blackman's face, he exclaimed: "This man (indicating Justice) is not my constituent. He's just a little business man I'm trying to help I've had enough of your impudent airs, mister."

Wherry grabbed Blackman's coat lapels and began to shake him violently. The WPB consultant wrenched himself free and the two men were about to go to it, when Justice and Thurman stepped between them.

As the Nebraskan was leaving the office, he shouted over his shoulder: "This is the kind of thing my committee was set up to investigate and you are going to be a witness when we re-open hearings."

Planes Guarded Ships of Invasion Fleet; Many Wrong Guesses About Destination.

WITH THE U. S. NAVY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN—(By Wireless—Delayed)—Once we left port and headed for Sicily our whole ship's crew was kept on what's known as "Condition Two"—which means all battle stations manned with half crews while the other half rests—but nobody slept much.

Our ship was packed to the gills. We were carrying extra army and navy staffs and our small ship had about 150 people above normal. Table sittings went up to four in the officers' mess and the poor colored boys who waited tables were at it nearly every waking hour. All bunks had at least two occupants and many officers slept on the deck rolled up in blankets. You couldn't move without stepping on somebody.

Lt. Comdr. Fritz Gleim, big regular navy man with a dry good humor, remarked one morning at breakfast, "Everybody is certainly polite on this ship. They always say, 'excuse me' when they step on you. I've got so I sleep right ahead while being walked on so now they have to shake me till I wake up so they can say, 'excuse me.'

THE SAILORS' white hats were forbidden on deck during the operation so several sailors dyed their hats blue except that they turned out a sort of sickly purple.

It was also the rule that everybody had to wear steel helmets during "General Quarters." Somehow I had it in my head that navy people never wore life belts but I was very wrong. Everybody wears them in the battle zone constantly. It became one of the ship's strictest rules the moment we left that you dare not get caught without a lifebelt on.

Most everybody wears the kind that straps around the waist like a belt about four inches wide. It is rubberized and lies flat. It has two little cartridges of compressed gas—exactly the same things you use in soda water syphons at home—and when you press these they go off and fill your belt with air.

My life jacket was one of the aviation Mae West type. I took that because it holds your head up if you are unconscious and I knew that at the first sign of danger I'd immediately become unconscious.

Furthermore I figured there's safety in numbers so I took one of the regular life belts, too. I am so damn buoyant that if I'd ever jumped into the water I would have bounced right back out again.

A MASS of 2000 ships couldn't possibly move without a few accidents. I have no idea of what the total was for the fleet as a whole but for our portion it was very small. About half a dozen assault craft had engine breakdowns and either had to be towed or else straggled along behind and came in late—that was all.

Allied planes flew over us in formation several times a day. We couldn't see them most of the time but I understand we had an air convoy the whole trip.

The first morning out the sailors were called on deck and told where we were going. I stood with them as they got the news and couldn't see any change of expression at all but later you could sense a new enthusiasm just merely from knowing.

That news, incidentally, was the occasion for settling up any number of bets. It seems the boys had been wagering among themselves for days on where we would invade. You'd be surprised at the bad guesses.

Many thought it would be Italy, some Greece, some France and one poor benighted chap even thought we were going to Norway. One man on the ship has a hobby of betting. He is George Razevich, aerologist's mate, first class, of Racine, Wis. George is a former bartender and beer salesman. He will bet on anything. And if he can't get takers he will bet the other side of the ship never leaves port.

George had few bets on where the ship was going but he practically always guesses wrong and he's more than $100 in the hole. But he makes up with dice what he loses by his bad sense of direction. He's $1000 ahead on craps since leaving the states. George didn't make any invasion bets as he says anybody with any sense knew where we were going without being told. His current bet is $10 that the ship will be back in United States by Sept. 1.

During the trip we carried two jeeps on the deck to be used by army commanders when we went ashore. They had signs on them forbidding anybody to sit in them but nobody paid any attention to the signs.

Every evening after supper the sailors not on duty would gather on the fantail—which seems to be equivalent to the quarterdeck—and talk in jovial groups. Once under way there didn't seem to be any tenseness or worry displayed by anybody. Even the grimness was gone.
